Apollo 8 Spacemen Soar Moonward; Aim At Lunar Orbit Christmas Eve

SAFE IN THE ARMS of Scrooge — James Graham of Newell — Tiny Tim, portrayed by Vincent Monte, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Monte of 427 Commerce St., Wellsville, shares a look of mutual understanding about Christmas. They will appear in "A Christmas Carol" today at 3 and 7 p.m. and Sunday at 7 p.m. presented by the Children's Wing of the Ceramic Playrites in the Liberty Art Theater at Wellsville. Proceeds from Sunday's performance will be donated to the medical fund being raised for Paul McCraw, who is confined to Children's Hospital in Pittsburgh with a rare disease.

Astronauts First Humans To Escape Earth's Gravity

By HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Reaching into unexplored frontiers, America's Apollo 8 astronauts today soared higher and faster than man has ever flown and set sail across the uncharted ocean of space, aiming for a Christmas Eve orbit of the moon.

Air Force Col. Frank Borman, Navy Capt. James A. Lovell Jr. and Air Force Maj. William A. Anders became the first humans to escape the grasp of earth's gravity as a jolting rocket blast hurled them out of earth orbit and sent them toward man's first voyage in the vicinity of the moon.

As they broke away from earth's hold, Apollo 8 set a new altitude record for manned space flight, shattering the 851-mile mark set in 1966 by the Gemini 11 pilots.

The power was provided by the third stage of the Saturn 5 super-rocket that had pushed Apollo 8 into space with an earth-shaking roar at 7:51 a.m. EST.

Ground trackers at a station in Hawaii reported they had actually seen the engines firing as it propelled Apollo 8 outward toward the moon. The firing occurred over Hawaii in darkness.

"You're on your way—you're really on your way now" flight director Chris Kraft radioed the astronauts after the successful burn.

"Roger, we look good here," Borman replied.

For nearly three hours, Borman, Lovell and Anders had circled the globe checking and rechecking their systems, making certain all were functioning before they were committed to a potentially hazardous quarter million-mile journey across the trackless void where man has never ventured.

They reported Apollo 8 was perfect and the Mission Control Center gave them the go-ahead to take the historic step that propelled them toward the moon, the alluring first frontier in man's exploration of space.

The third stage had provided the final push to drill Apollo 8 into earth orbit, and the 58-foot-long section remained attached for the nearly two orbits that the astronauts checked the systems.

A 10:41 a.m. EST the third stage was restarted a second time and during a five-minute burst it increased Apollo's speed from about 17,400 to 24,200 miles per hour, the velocity needed to escape the influence of earth's gravity.

If Apollo 8 had not been aimed toward the moon, it would have headed for an orbit around the sun because it had broken away from earth's hold. However, in the vicinity of the moon, lunar gravity will grasp the spacecraft and prevent it from shooting out into the solar system.

Ahead of the astronauts on their momentous space odyssey lay a lonely 66-hour trip through a strange world to the vicinity of the moon, which today was 220,074 miles from earth.

Guiding themselves by the stars, Borman, Lovell and Anders are to steer themselves within 69 miles of the moon early Dec. 24 and then fire their SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Because it was the most appropriate thing they could think of, neighbors of astronaut William A. Anders gathered on his front lawn to pray that his space journey is a safe one.

They sang the songs of Christmas—a day Air Force Maj. Anders and two other astronauts will spend circling the moon if all goes well. And they sang "The Star Spangled Banner" and recited the pledge of allegiance.

On the Anders' lawn stood a four-foot high wooden American flag with 50 lights forming the stars and others the red and white stripes. It was a gift from the neighbors, all connected somehow with the space program.

Soviet News Agency Reports Apollo Shot

MOSCOW (AP) — Tass reported promptly and in detail today the launching of America's Apollo 8 manned moon shot.

A six-paragraph factual dispatch, filed from New York, appeared on the official Soviet news agency's wire within minutes after the launching at Cape Kennedy. It made no comment.

Soviet radio stations did not interrupt normal programming to announce the launching. Soviet television, which sometimes hooks up with live Western television broadcasts did not show the launching. A studio spoksman said no Soviet television coverage of the story is planned for today.

Man Killed As Car Rams Into Freight

A 25-year-old East Liverpool man was killed early this morning when the car in which he was riding smashed into a three-car freight train on Route 183, a mile south of Minerva.

Pronounced dead on arrival at Alliance City Hospital at 3:05 was Gary L. Randolph of 813 Division St.

The Ohio Highway Patrol at New Philadelphia said Randolph was a passenger in a car driven by Fred S. Beatty Jr., 25, of Minerva RD 1.

The crossing did not have flashers, but a flagman attempted to flag down the vehicle, the patrol said. However, the car slid on the icy highway, smashing sideways into the train. Randolph was pinned under the car and was rushed to Alliance City Hospital after being freed. The accident occurred at 2:30 and is still under investigation.

Randolph was employed at the TRW Metal Products plant

Kidnaped Victim Freed From Box

MIAMI (AP) — Kidnap victim Barbara Jane Mackle returned to her parents today after she was freed from a box in which she was buried for more than three nights in the red clay of freezing North Georgia woodlands. Her parents paid a $500,000 ransom.

"I'm fine, I'm fine, Uncle Frank," Barbara told Frank Mackle by telephone after the rescue.

And the 20-year-old coed told her mother that during the more than 80 hours she was in the box she worried most that her family was worrying about her.

An escaped convict and his woman companion charged with the kidnaping remained at large.

Barbara's ordeal ended about 5 p.m. Friday. The girl still wore the red and white checkered nightgown she had on when kidnaped. A sweater was added from some unknown source.

The kidnapers gave the word where Barbara could be found about 5 p.m., some 15 hours after retrieving the suitcase full of $20 bills from a shopping center on Miami's Tamiami Trail.

When the noon deadline for the girl's release had passed with no word of her safety, FBI

6 Indicted By Jury In Jefferson Probe

STEUBENVILLE — Six recommendations for improved operations of the Jefferson County sheriff's office were being studied today by county officials following a report issued Friday by the Grand Jury which indicted a man and five women linked with prostitution.

The Grand Jury was in session 14 days and heard more than 65 witnesses in connection with alleged prostitution near the Waterford Bar at Yellow Creek and mishandling of funds in the department of Sheriff Richard Wells.

The panel leveled criticism of high spending and laxity of investigation by the department in connection with the prostitution charges.

Levy Decision Clears Way For Wellsville Fire Truck

Judge Joel H. Sharp of Common Pleas Court at Lisbon cleared the way Friday for Wellsville to buy a new fire truck.

He directed the Columbiana County Budget Commission to place on the 1968 tax duplicate the 2-mill fire truck levy which Wellsville voters approved Nov. 5.

This means the two-year levy will apply to taxes collected in 1969 and 1970 on the 1968 and 1969 tax years.

Shortly after the election, the Budget Commission (auditor, treasurer and prosecuting attorney) advised Wellsville the state law would not permit adding the levy to the 1968 tax list because Council did not include the anticipated income from the levy in its 1969 budget which was submitted to the commission in July.

Tight Security In Truce Village

Release Of Pueblo Crew Looms Sunday Or Monday

SEOUL (AP) — The Korean truce village of Panmunjom was under a tight security lid today amid reports that 82 crew members of the U.S. intelligence ship Pueblo might be released Sunday or Monday.

The South Korean Christian Broadcasting System reported that the United States and North Korea held their 28th private meeting today to settle final details of the men's release.

Quoting unidentified diplomatic sources, the radio station said that if everything goes well at today's meeting, the crewmen would be freed Sunday or Monday. It said both sides already have reached general agreement on the release and would not have much difficulty in working out the final procedural details.

The Seoul daily Kyunghyang Shinmoon, which correctly predicted two meetings early this week, published a story similar to the radio report.

U.S. military and diplomatic officials, however, refused to comment on the progress of the negotiations or on where, when and how the Pueblo crew might be released. But a high government source in Washington said North Korea had agreed to free the men and that he would not rule out the possibility that the American sailors would be on their way home by Christmas.

Korean newspapers said that at the 27th secret meeting on the Pueblo, held Thursday, the United States agreed to admit that the ship intruded into North Korea's "contiguous waters," before it was seized Jan. 23.

Mother, Girl Are Hurt In Lisbon Crash

LISBON — Mrs. William Mandish and her daughter Fawn, 16, of old Route 30, Lisbon RD 2, were injured at 8 a.m. today when their 1965 sedan struck a utility pole at the junction of Jackson St. and E. Lincoln Way.

Mrs. Mandish hit the windshield, police said, and received lacerations of the face and a possible back injury. Miss Mandish, the driver, was cut on the face. They were taken to Salem City Hospital by ambulance.

Police said Miss Mandish lost control of the car as she turned west from Jackson onto Lincoln Way. Both streets carry U.S. Route 30. The front end of the car caved in against the pole in front of the Genesta Barr residence at 637 E. Lincoln Way.

Police said Miss Mandish was driving on a temporary permit.

Apollo 8's Astronauts Sail Uncharted Space

spaceship engine to inject Apollo 8 into an initial orbit ranging from 69 to 196 miles above the lunar surface. Later they are to circularize the path at the 69-mile altitude.

Before heading home 20 hours later, they hoped to gather vital information that will ease the way for Americans to make a landing on the moon next year.

During the two orbits of the earth the astronauts were very businesslike in their conversation. Most of the communication was technical except for brief outbursts of "we're go" from Borman when Apollo 8 dashed into orbit.

Asked how things looked out the window, Borman replied, "everything looks the same as it did three years ago," referring to the two-week Gemini 7 flight that he made with Lovett.

Tens of thousands of persons watched the launch from vantage points in the Cape Kennedy area. Many had camped out on the nearby beaches in order to be near when the mammoth rocket lifted majestically into the clear blue sky.

Among the observers were Lovell's wife, Marilyn, and the four Lovell children, ranging in age from 2 to 15, and his mother, Mrs. Blanche Lovell.

The power to propel the astronauts toward their distant target 220,047 miles away, will come from the third stage of the Saturn 5, which remained linked to Apollo 8 when it darted into orbit.

Barring any problems, the third stage was to restart at 10:56 a.m. TST for five minutes 12 seconds to increase the astronauts' speed from about 17,400 to about 24,200 miles an hour, sufficient to escape the influence of earth's gravity.

If the spacemen are not quite ready, or they are uncertain of some system, they could delay the refiring of the engine another orbit, about 90 minutes.

Borman, Lovell and Anders want everything perfect before they commit themselves to a quarter-million-mile trip across a trackless void where no man has ventured.

For Apollo 8 not only is man's most ambitious space flight, it is his most dangerous.

In earth orbit, astronauts can return to their planet almost at will by firing retro-rockets. But on a moon flight, if something goes wrong, they could be as far as three days from home with no quick way back.

But astronauts and space agency officials are confident that all possible precautions have been taken to assure the astronauts' safety.

"We have got elements of danger all along the way," Apollo 8 commander Borman said. "But I can't help thinking when I see that booster and that spacecraft, that we are looking at the best that American echnology can produce. . . I wouldn't get in the thing unless I thought it was safe."

Here is the flight plan:

The Saturn 5 is to drill Apollo 8 into an initial earth orbit 119 miles high. For nearly two orbits, about three hours, the astronauts are to coast, checking all their systems before committing themselves to fly to the vicinity of the moon.

In earth orbit, Apollo 8 could return to earth almost instantly if something were wrong. But once en route to the moon, they could be as much as three days from hom.

If all is okay, the engine of Saturn 5's third stage, still attached, restarts to increase Apollo 8's speed from about 17,400 to 24,200 miles an hour—and man for the first time will escape earth's immediate gravity field and head for the gravity tug of another celestial body, the moon.

For 66 hours, Borman, Lovell and Anders are to coast outwards toward their distant target, 220,074 miles away, guiding themselves by the stars and making necessary course adjustments by firing their small jets.

Jean Hudson of Steubenville, Shirley Ash of Steele Ave., Steubenville, and Carolyn (Karen) Brenat of Wintersville, remaining in a house for purposes of prostitution Aug. 27, 1968.

Arraignment is scheduled Dec. 30.

The report was filed at 3 p.m. and accepted by Judge Arthur Hooper, who late yesterday morning rejected the report because it contained statements which he said he did not consider within the authority of the jury. The panel returned to the jury room and apparently revised the report.

THE recommendations submitted in the report were:

1.—There be established a personnel investigation staff in the prosecutor's office.

2.—The sheriff should adopt responsible investigatory procedures responsive to the best interests of the public on all criminal matters, including vice, gambling and prostitution and "in keeping with his oath of office."

3.—The sheriff's department should be placed under Civil Service.

4.—The sheriff should strive to obtain respect between all law enforcement agencies.

5.—The loose practice of appointing special deputies should be discontinued.

6.—All budgets, appropriations, disbursements and expenditures in every department of the county government should be examined periodically by future grand juries.

THE PANEL reported it found the sheriff's expenditures in each year since he assumed office in 1965 exceeded the original appropriations. The jury held expenditures "too high, particularly for gas and oil, food and groceries, tires and maintenance."

The panel urged closer scrutiny of expenditures as a definite necessity in the future.

The report cited "general apathy" of the public and officials with respect to prostitution, due to lack of concrete evidence needed to prosecute such cases.

The report said testimony showed lower ranked deputies have been hindered somewhat in exercise of authority and duties because every complaint must be cleared by the sheriff or his chief deputy, Pete Demos.

According to the Grand Jury, there had been no investigation or raid at the Yellow Creek house even though there had been many complaints to the sheriff's office.

The probe revealed a lack of cooperation between the sheriff's office and other police and law enforcement agencies. "There is a lack of respect for the capabilities of the sheriff's office, and a lack of courtesy from the sheriff to other agencies and police departments."

Survey Studied For Tinsonville Water Expansion

Plans were made to contact a consulting engineering firm when a six - man committee from Tinsonville met with the Chester Water and Sewage Board Friday night in City Hall in an effort to provide expanded service for the area.

Atty. Edward Flowers, solicitor for the board, was authorized to contact the firm.

He discussed with the two groups the step-by-process to be followed in obtaining water and sewage facilities.

Cost of the program and other details also were reviewed, William Wedgewood, chairman of the Tinsonville committee, said.

Some 68 names were obtained for petitions to be used in an effort to advance the program, Wedgewood said. All but three families signed, he added. Two involve pensioners who fear they couldn't bear the cost of the changeover and the other could not be reached.

Mayor Harold Ash noted that the Board and the six-man team will either meet with the consulting engineer after the cost survey or a meeting will be set up to discuss the findings of the engineering firm. The meeting, Ash stressed, will be held at the earliest possible date to speed the progress of the project.

Mother, Girl Are Hurt In Lisbon Crash

LISBON — Mrs. William Mandish and her daughter Fawn, 16, of old Route 30, Lisbon RD 2, were injured at 8 a.m. today when their 1965 sedan struck a utility pole at the junction of Jackson St. and E. Lincoln Way.

Police said Miss Mandish lost control of the car as she turned west from Jackson onto Lincoln Way. Both streets carry U.S. Route 30. The front end of the car caved in against the pole in front of the Genesta Barr residence at 637 E. Lincoln Way.

Police said Miss Mandish was driving on a temporary permit.

Apollo 8's Astronauts Sail Uncharted Space

spaceship engine to inject Apollo 8 into an initial orbit ranging from 69 to 196 miles above the lunar surface. Later they are to circularize the path at the 69-mile altitude.

Before heading home 20 hours later, they hoped to gather vital information that will ease the way for Americans to make a landing on the moon next year.

During the two orbits of the earth the astronauts were very businesslike in their conversation. Most of the communication was technical except for brief outbursts of "we're go" from Borman when Apollo 8 dashed into orbit.

Asked how things looked out the window, Borman replied, "everything looks the same as it did three years ago," referring to the two-week Gemini 7 flight that he made with Lovett.

Tens of thousands of persons watched the launch from vantage points in the Cape Kennedy area. Many had camped out on the nearby beaches in order to be near when the mammoth rocket lifted majestically into the clear blue sky.

Among the observers were Lovell's wife, Marilyn, and the four Lovell children, ranging in age from 2 to 15, and his mother, Mrs. Blanche Lovell.

The power to propel the astronauts toward their distant target 220,047 miles away, will come from the third stage of the Saturn 5, which remained linked to Apollo 8 when it darted into orbit.

Barring any problems, the third stage was to restart at 10:56 a.m. TST for five minutes 12 seconds to increase the astronauts' speed from about 17,400 to about 24,200 miles an hour, sufficient to escape the influence of earth's gravity.

If the spacemen are not quite ready, or they are uncertain of some system, they could delay the refiring of the engine another orbit, about 90 minutes.

Borman, Lovell and Anders want everything perfect before they commit themselves to a quarter-million-mile trip across a trackless void where no man has ventured.

For Apollo 8 not only is man's most ambitious space flight, it is his most dangerous.

In earth orbit, astronauts can return to their planet almost at will by firing retro-rockets. But on a moon flight, if something goes wrong, they could be as far as three days from home with no quick way back.

But astronauts and space agency officials are confident that all possible precautions have been taken to assure the astronauts' safety.

"We have got elements of danger all along the way," Apollo 8 commander Borman said. "But I can't help thinking when I see that booster and that spacecraft, that we are looking at the best that American echnology can produce... I wouldn't get in the thing unless I thought it was safe."

Here is the flight plan:

The Saturn 5 is to drill Apollo 8 into an initial earth orbit 119 miles high. For nearly two orbits, about three hours, the astronauts are to coast, checking all their systems before committing themselves to fly to the vicinity of the moon.

In earth orbit, Apollo 8 could return to earth almost instantly if something were wrong. But once en route to the moon, they could be as much as three days from hom.

If all is okay, the engine of Saturn 5's third stage, still attached, restarts to increase Apollo 8's speed from about 17,400 to 24,200 miles an hour—and man for the first time will escape earth's immediate gravity field and head for the gravity tug of another celestial body, the moon.

For 66 hours, Borman, Lovell and Anders are to coast outwards toward their distant target, 220,074 miles away, guiding themselves by the stars and making necessary course adjustments by firing their small jets.

Board Airs Coach Role

Separation of the East Liverpool High School athletic director and coaching posts and other recommendations for administrative changes were discussed at an informal session of the board of education Friday night.

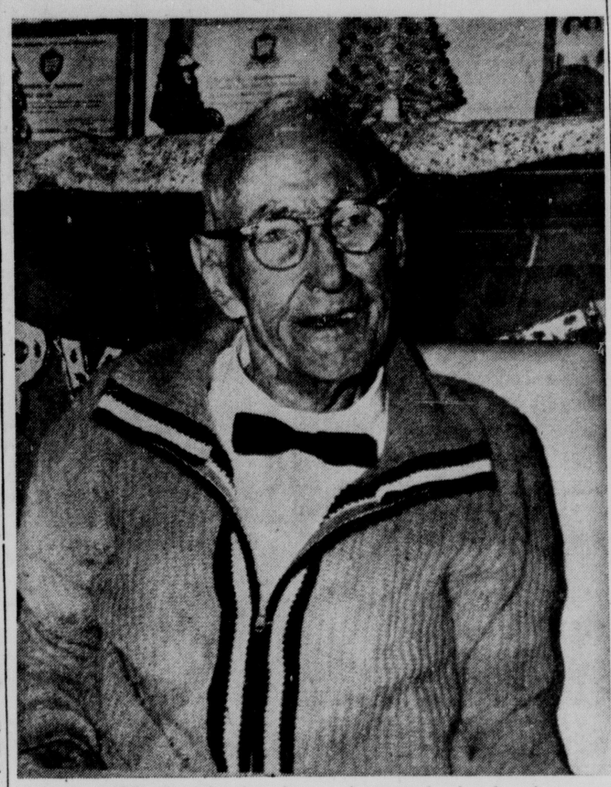
The athletic director post was reviewed during the meeting. Final official action is expected at a regular meeting of the board Jan. 6.

Also discussed was a recommendation by a team of educators earlier this monh for a revision of the structure of the athletic board. The board had aired other recommendations of the team headed by Harold Sebold, executive director of the Ohio School Administrators Association, at an informal meeting Monday.

The educators made a two-day survey of a faculty controversy within the school district centered upon Robert McNea, football coach and athletic director, and Clinton McConnell, basketball coach. McNea and several of his aides have submitted resignations, but the board has not acted upon them. Pelini attended last night's meeting. Supt. Paul Blair has been hospitalized with influenza.

At the request of the East Liverpool Teachers Association, a survey team of the Ohio Education Association's Professional Rights and Responsibilities Committee is to visit the city Jan. 10-11.

He Will Be 102



On a cold winter's day in 1866 in Galla County, Ohio, Mrs. John Peterson gave birth to a son, Thomas, two days before Christmas. Little did she imagine that 102 years later he still would be celebrating his birthday — but he will Monday.

Thomas Peterson, who resides in the East Liverpool Convalescent Center on W. 3rd St., recalls that he was only 11 when his father, a Civil War veteran, was killed. The family moved to Irondale, where he resided most of his life.

A corncob pipe has become his trademark, Mr. Peterson said. He made his own pipe when he was 17, and has been smoking ever since.

Mr. Peterson worked in a mine near Irondale for many years and was, he says, involved with the first tin plate operation in this country. At 72, he retired as a miner to become Saline Township constable. He never carried a gun, preferring a blackjack.

He left police work in 1948 when he was 82. His primary interests today are reading the Bible and visiting with friends.

Crash Hurts Young Driver

A 19-year-old New Cumberland area driver was listed in "fair" condition today at Weirton General Hospital following a one-car accident at the intersections of Route 2 and 6th St. Rd. in Newell.

Ernest L. Rice of New Cumberland RD 2 suffered a fractured jaw, lacerations of the face and neck injuries after the car he was driving slid on the wet pavement and struck a sign in front of Allison's Valu King. The car was demolished, with damage estimated at $3,000 to the 1968 vehicle.

At 3:27 a.m. today on Route 30 near the Chester city limits, a car driven by Ronald H. Smith, 17, of Newburg, W. Va., was struck from behind by a vehicle operated by Martin P. Lesinski, 19, of New Brighton.

Smith told deputies he was descending the Route 30 hill and as he slowed, Lesinski's car struck him from behind. Damage to Smith's car was estimated at $50 with Lesinski's $500.

Gloria J. Carpenter, 20, of East Liverpool was cited for improper passing at an intersection when her car collided with one driven by Cecil K. Davis, 33, of New Cumberland. The accident occurred Friday at 10:55 p.m. at Routes 30 and 8, two miles east of Chester.

Damage was estimated at $300 to the Carpenter auto, which is owned by David Carpenter of 318 Alley A. Chester, and at $250 to the Davis vehicle.

Will Aid Low-Income Families

County 1 Of 16 Selected For Nutritional Program

LISBON — Columbiana is among 16 Ohio counties selected for an expanded nutrition educational program for low-income families.

Paul Gipp, county extension agent for agriculture, will serve as chairman for the program.

He said funds have been assigned by the U.S. Department of Agriculture from import taxes on agricultural products. The purpose is to raise the health level of people through improved food habits.

Nutrition aides will be employed beginning Feb. 1 to assist low-income families in improving the nutritional quality and adequacy of their diets.

Aides will work directly with Ann Riedel, county extension agent, home economics, who will train and supervise them. They then will work with mothers and families in individual homes and, perhaps, in small groups. Mrs. Riedel said the program will be directed to both adults and youth in both urban and rural areas.

The state selected the counties on the number of low-income persons. Columbiana stands 13th in the list selected. Statistics show the county (population 107,036) has 20,402 low-income people.

Of these, 10,503 reside in urban areas and 9,949 in rural areas, including 1,268 on farms.

Other counties selected for the project, which may continue for several years, are Cuyahoga, Hamilton, Franklin, Montgomery, Lucas, Summit, Stark, Mahoning, Lorain, Scioto, Butler, Clark, Belmont, Allen and Jefferson.

Extension agents of the counties selected attended a state meeting on the program recently. Representatives of various agencies and organizations in the county met Thursday in the extension office here to map plans.

Mrs. Riedel said areas tentatively selected for the program are East Liverpool, Wellsville, Salineville, Rogers and Negley.

She said "mature and outgoing people residing in the target areas will be employed as aides and will work either full time or part time.

Application forms are available at the county extension office, 113 S. Market St., Lisbon. They are to be filled in and returned to the office by Jan. 9.

Double Bad Luck

EUNICE, N.M. (AP) — Last year Robert Lloyd, 13, was playing basketball in a physical education class when he fell on the court and skidded toward the wall. Robert threw up his hands in an effort to stop himself, and fractured one of his arms.

This week, the eighth-grader did the same thing, but this time he fractured both arms.

Levy

was not passed until Aug. 6—a month after the deadline for the budget but well within the legal period for asking for a place on the ballot.

The Budget Commission said the best it could do, by law, was to place the levy on the 1969 tax duplicate for collection in 1970. That would have limited the levy to one year. Since it will bring in between $18,000 and $20,000 annually, one year's income would not be enough to buy the truck, which will cost about $35,000.

One month ago last night, Wellsville Council authorized Solicitor William Bush to petition Common Pleas Court to have the Budget Commission put the levy on the current tax duplicate so the city can begin collecting on it next year.

At the hearing yesterday, Bush argued that the section of code cited by the Budget Commission is unreasonable. He said the legislature could not have intended the law to create this kind of a situation. He cited other sections of the code in conflict with the one used by the Budget Commission.

Prosecuting Atty. J. Warren Bettis spoke for the Budget Commission. Auditor Kenneth Bell and Deputy Auditor James Cavanaugh sat with him.

"We are not opposed to the people of Wellsville voting a levy and collecting the money, but the Budget Commission is audited by the state auditor's office and none of us wants to be named in a finding," Bettis said.

He said the commission interpreted the law to mean it cannot give a subdivision more for any one year than what was shown in its budget.

Judge Sharp's order leaves the Budget Commission in the clear.

He said the various sections of the code are in conflict.

Under the section cited by the commission, "There would be no way to provide for an emergency such as the destruction of a small city's fire engine," Judge Sharp said.

"In this case," he continued, "the present truck has not been destroyed, but it is 17 years old and unless replaced it may break down and cause an emergency."

In handing down his ruling, he also mentioned a statement by Bell that the city is threatened with an increase in insurance rates if the old fire truck is not replaced.

Fire Chief Robert Lewis and Fireman Dan Crawford attended the hearing.

Furnace Pipe Blows Off In Rogers House

ROGERS — No damage resulted when a furnace pipe at the home of Robert E. Wolf on the Dutchtown Rd. three miles south of Rogers blew off the furnace in the basement Friday at 1 p. m.

Fire Chief Earl DeVan of the Rogers Volunteer Fire Department reported the firemen investigated and found the basement full of smoke and soot.

Kidnap

Director J. Edgar Hoover announced that kidnap warrants had been issued for Gary Steve Krist, 23, an escaped convict from California, and Ruth Eisemann Schier, 26, a green-eyed bleached blonde. Both were researchers at the University of Miami Institute of Marine Science.

Hoover said the box in which the debutante was imprisoned near Atlanta was equipped with an air pump, food, water, a fan, and a battery-powered lamp that failed hours before she was located.

The lid of the box was screwed down and flexible vent pipes protruded through the soil.

Barbara told her brother the kidnapers "were very considerate" and she told her mother she was "very well taken care of by a woman," Frank Mackle said.

Once rescued, Barbara was bundled into a suit and warm blue coat and rushed aboard her father's private plane in Atlanta. The father, Robert F. Mackle, a multimillionaire land developer who is a friend of President-elect Nixon, looked worn but managed a thin smile.

The background of the pair charged with the kidnaping was almost as bizarre as the wooden prison that held Barbara.

Hoover said Krist escaped from a California reformatory through a hail of gunfire that killed his cellmate, then set about building another identity as George D. Deacon.

In December 1966, one month after the escape, Krist brought his wife and two children to Boston. There, the high school graduate—described by the warden of the reformatory as "a young man of very superior intelligence"—convinced officials of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology that he had an education in electrical engineering. He worked 18 months at MIT as an electronics technician.

Last June Krist—under the name Deacon—came to the University of Miami Institute of Marine Science as a technician in submarine geology.

Deacon's wife and two children went to California two weeks before the kidnaping, his neighbors said.

The woman in the case, a 5-foot-3, 110-pounder with a chemistry degree from the National University of Mexico, claimed to be a native of El Hatillo, Honduras, Hoover said.

Hoover asked persons who may have information about the pair to notify the nearest FBI office. He cautioned that both may be armed and should be considered dangerous.

Krist is six-foot, 195 pounds, with brown eyes and brown hair.

Narick, Abel Qualify For USW Election

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Emil Narick, a former football player who tagged himself the underdog when he entered the race for the presidency of the United Steelworkers Union, has passed the first hurdle in his attempt to unseat incumbent I. W. Abel.

Narick and Abel, who made union history two years ago when he became the first man to defeat an incumbent president, qualified Friday for the February election as the count of nominations from 3,600 locals ended.

With 126 nominations necessary, Abel easily snagged a ballot slot by rolling up 2,212 votes to Narick's 326.

East, Gulf Ports Idled By Walkout

NEW YORK (AP) — Dock operations at ports from Maine to Texas were at a standstill today after the International Longshoremen's Association renewed its walkout against shippers. President Johnson said both sides should end the dispute immediately.

A Hint At Better Relations

Release of 12 American servicemen by Cambodia could be the break needed to establish better relations between the United States and the strategic neighbor of South Vietnam.

One of the long-standing fears linked to the Vietnam War has been that it would expand to include Cambodia, Laos and Thailand.

North Vietnamese use of supply routes in Cambodia and Laos has been a constant source of tension.

Intensification of guerrilla activity in Thailand and the American B-25 base in that country has clouded its future, too.

Refusal of Prince Norodom Sihanouk to release the Americans fueled the fued and lent weight to the position that Cambodia should be dealt with severely.

American officials held their ground in demanding the men be freed with no strings attached.

The U.S. State Department wanted to gain release of the men without widening a war it is trying to negotiate its way out of.

It appears the diplomacy paid off.

Extra dividends may come in the form of some additional understanding between the United States and Prince Sihanouk that would cut down or eliminate North Vietnam's use of Cambodian territory.

Lax Law Enforcement

Accusations that Jefferson County's Sheriff Richard Wells' department protected prostitution in the northern part of the county or improperly handled funds have no legal justification, the county Grand Jury indicated Friday.

But the indictments handed down by the panel and the criticisms and recommendations contained in its report give Sheriff Wells and his deputies little for which to be proud.

Lax law enforcement, poor relationships with other enforcing agencies, excessive spending, political backscratching and sloppy administrative work are some of the operational problems in the department, according to the report based on testimony heard from some 65 witnesses.

Apathy on the part of the public and county officials and the difficulty in obtaining evidence in prostitution cases are not excuses for permitting the house of ill fame about which complaints have been heard for many months.

The report once more throws a challenge to the Courthouse to take politics, permissiveness and promises out of enforcement so that law abiding taxpayers will be getting their money's worth.

Get Tough Policy Has Support

A majority of college freshmen surveyed by the American Council on Education's Office of Research feels campus administrators are too easy on militant student protesters. Their attitude mirrors that of an increasing number of American citizens.

The survey of 301,448 freshmen at more than 400 American universities and colleges showed 54.5 per cent believed administrators have been too lenient in dealing with perpetrators of campus disruptions.

GOV. RONALD REAGAN of California said a few days ago: "There is no longer any room for appeasement or give." His strong words typify what a lot of people are thinking.

Administrators generally have moved cautiously in meeting the challenge of demonstrations as a means of protecting the autonomy of academic institutions. At first, they sought to keep campuses free of outside influences—like policemen.

The get-tough attitude has become the prevalent doctrine because a "let's sit down and reason together" policy has not stemmed the militant protest flow.

A year ago trustees of California's 18 state colleges adopted a resolution authorizing college officials to seek funds and outside police assistance to keep down disorders on campus.

Administrators have not abandoned the students' freedom of expression. They are encouraging it to be shown in ways other than militant activism by meeting force with force.

Current protests demand everything from segregation to restructuring of the entire higher education system.

Those inside and outside the academic community who support what they consider just protests on the part of students are dismayed that violent tactics have obscured important dissent and has precipitated severe reaction by college authorities to restore campus peace.

THE STUDENT BID for absolute power has roots in the 13th century when guilds were formed by students as a means of imposing their will upon their teachers.

The tradition of student-run universities did not catch on and the latest student revolution will not usurp the authority of administrators, although it has affected some procedures.

The American college campus always has been and always will be a fertile soil for debate and controversy. It is a part of a student's learning and maturing process.

It also should be an introduction to discipline for those who are unfamiliar with it as well as a time for the information to be asseminated that the right to stand firm on specific principles is not an exclusive domain of the student.

A Star Is Born

By Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON — Whoever thinks the theater is dying in America probably doesn't have any school-age children. The truth is that the class Christmas play is still the hottest entertainment around. It is playing to capacity, captive holiday audiences everywhere.

I was on my way to work with my friend Renfrew the other morning when he asked if I would mind stopping by his daughter's school. He had promised to see her in "Hark! Is That a Snowflake Falling?" — a play that the eighth grade had been working on since Sept. 17.

Since Renfrew drives me to work on cold, wet mornings, I didn't have much choice but to say I would.

"IT WON'T TAKE but a few minutes," he assured me.

We went into the school auditorium, which was rapidly filling up with proud parents, though I noticed most of the fathers were anxiously looking at their watches. A teacher handed us a mimeographed program that I scanned for a few seconds and then said, horrified, "Renfrew, each class has its own play, starting with the kindergarten. 'Hark! Is That a Snowflake Falling?' is listed as the ninth item."

"It will go fast," he assured me. "They're very short plays."

We waited for the 9 a.m. curtain to go up but because of some hitch it didn't go up until 9:35.

THE KINDERGARTEN did "Up the Chimney," which went for 10 minutes. The first grade did a musical titled "What Angels Do We See Tonight?" with a reprise at the end. The second grade was well into "Grump, Grump, a Christmas Slump" when I turned to Renfrew and said, "It's 10:30. I have to get to my office".

"Ursula has seen me." Renfrew whispered. "I can't go now."

"Which one is Ursula?"

"She's one of the snowflakes," Renfrew said.

"There are 15 snowflakes."

"She's the one who's waving to me." He waved back. "It won't take long."

As each child finished the lines in his play, I noticed an anxious father jump up from his seat and dash for the door. After the third, fourth and fifth grades had finished their presentations, the auditorium was half-empty. I like Renfrew but I couldn't help wishing he had a child in one of the earlier grades.

The sixth grade did a mystery play and the seventh performed "How They Got the Christmas Tree From Maine to Arizona," which required a sequence about each state en route.

It was 11:50. Only the parents of the eighth grade were still there, and one stranger who, if he had to do it all over again, would have gone to work by taxi.

Finally, "Hark! Is That a Snowflake Falling?" was ready to be performed. A hush went over the audience.

"No matter how many times I see her on the stage, I still tense up," Renfrew said.

A fairy princess came down the line of snowflakes and held her wand over Ursula's head. "And what do you want to be?"

URSULA STOOD UP straight and blurted out, "I want to be the first snowflake on Christmas morning that any child will see."

The princess moved on.

"Okay," Renfrew said, "we can leave now."

"You got to be kidding," I said. "We sat here four hours for one line?"

"You're lucky," Renfrew said, "last year she was a church bell and all she had to say was 'bong.'"

As we were driving downtown Renfrew said, "Well, tell me. What did you honestly think?"

"Renfrew," I said, patting him on the shoulder, 'it was a memorable morning in the theater."

DAVID LAWRENCE

Foreign Police Triumvirate

In the next administration, three men will make foreign policy for the United States — President Richard Nixon, Secretary of State William P. Rogers and Henry A. Kissinger, professor of government at Harvard who will be the presidential assistant on national-security affairs.

Advice will be sought from Congress and elsewhere but decisions will be made by the President primarily on the basis of the recommendations of his two assistants.

An essay on the "Central Issues of World Affairs" has been written recently by Prof. Kissinger and published by the Brookings Institution of Washington, an independent research organization supported by private foundations. The article is 30,000 words long and while it doesn't specify concretely how the world's troubles can be solved, it does state the facts about foreign-policy problems.

PROF. KISSINGER points out that statesmen currently face "the unprecedented problem of formulating policy for well over 100 countries" and that what used to be considered domestic events can nowadays have worldwide consequences.

As Communist philosophies have spread among various nations, the world has become "militarily bipolar," Prof. Kissinger says. He explains it this way:

"Only two powers—the United States and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics — possess the full panoply of military might. Over the next decade, no other country or group of countries will be capable of challenging their physical pre-eminence.

Indeed, the gap in military strength between the two giant nuclear countries and the rest of the world is likely to increase rather than diminish over that period."

But Prof. Kissinger makes it clear that a "bipolar world" is not necessarily a contented one and that the smaller countries "are torn between a desire for protection and a wish to escape big power dominance." He says:

"Weaker allies have good reason to believe that their defense is in the overwhelming interest of their senior partner. Hence, they see no need to purchase its support by acquiescence in its policies. The new nations feel protected by the rivalry of the superpowers and their nationalism leads to ever bolder assertions of self-will. . .

"The greatest need of the contemporary international system is an agreed concept of order. . .

"Regional groupings supported by the United States will have to take over major responsibility for their immediate areas, with the United States being concerned more with the over-all framework of order than with the management of every regional enterprise."

This latter idea was also recently espoused by the former prime minister of Canada, Lester B. Pearson.

Prof. Kissinger insists that "a new international order is inconceivable without a significant American contribution." He doesn't suggest, however, what kind of organization can be developed which will not be plagued by Communist subversion of the governments of small countries so as to influence their votes in the General Assembly of the United Nations.

Prof. Kissinger lays stress on the arms race and the importance of controlling it, and he declares that "a new look at American national security policy is essential.

He believes, of course, that more emphasis should be placed on reaching agreements on arms control. He feels that some of the weaker countries have not been able to add much strength to the multipower alliances.

He doesn't think that the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization or the Central Treaty Organization or even the North Atlantic Treaty Organization has been effective. He calls attention to the fact that Europe has evaded "our entreaties to play a global role," and that Europeans do not consider their interests at stake when America becomes involved on other continents.

THE IMPRESSION that Prof. Kissinger's paper leaves is that Europeans must be persuaded to assume much greater responsibility, not merely through military arrangements but in what he calls "a degree of political co-operation which links the fate of each partner with the survival of all the others."

Prof. Kissinger is by no means an isolationist. He reveals rather a sincere desire to see a better system of alliances in the world which, he implies, can do more to preserve peace.

The Pattern Of Administration

It's doubtful whether any new Cabinet officer ever took over the department to which he was assigned without big and bright ideas about how it should be reorganized. And the 12 good men and true who were presented by President-elect Nixon will be no exceptions.

No doubt they will find, as the months pass, that they will have their hands full trying to understand the meaning and purpose of bureaucratic monstrosities over which, at least nominally, they must preside.

There has been a proposal made that the Department of Health, Education and Welfare absorb the two latest members — Housing and Urban Development and Transportation — into a vast new entity called the Department of Human Resources.

But any such semantic change (for the present bureaus and agencies would still be there) would encounter not only the consent of Congress but the willingness of the new secretaries, George Romney and John Volpe, to give up the honors and perquisites they have so gladly assumed.

Once seated, a department head cherishes his office like a cat seeking the warmest place before the fireplace.

There was talk about the merger of Commerce with Labor a while ago but that failed. And from another source there has come a suggestion about merging Agriculture and Interior in a big affair perhaps to be called a Department of Natural Resources.

Assuredly there is overlapping. I offer one small example:

The Rural Electrification Administration (Agriculture) has given a loan to a co-operative in Alaska to minister to 20,000 Indians, Eskimos and Alsuts in 95 villages. This will involve co-operation among the Office of Economic Opportunity (the President's office), the Bureau of Indian Affairs (Interior), the Department of Labor and the state of Alaska.

Throughout the federal establishment overlapping is so common that there is a large number of bureaucrats in all departments to look after overlapping.

As we look back into the origins of the present departments we find that for the most part (except in those which existed under President Washington) they were created because either a function in an existing department became important enough to claim individual recognition or because a lot of new activities were created by Congress and needed to be nicely packaged in one new department.

The general theory (if there has been a theory) has been that a department represents certain broad interests either in the government itself (Defense or Post Office) or in the private sector (Commerce, Labor, Agriculture) or a lot of new activities assumed by the federal government which were formerly state, local or private affairs. And that the heads of such departments speak for those interests to the President, Congress and the public generally. They are thus the voices of special interests.

Later on we may see, as we have seen in the past, struggles between department heads over the control of agencies. One example of this war of acquisition was the long fight in the 1930s when Secretary Harold Ickes tried to take the Forest Service into his Interior Department and away from Henry Wallace's Department of Agriculture.

SO FAR AS the present Department of HEW is concerned, it has really grown to such proportions as to be unmanageable. Instead of absorbing more, it should be divided into three new departments — health, education and welfare.

The Cabinet itself has long ceased to be a place where the president can make policy. In the Kennedy years, Cabinet meetings were practically dispensed with. The president makes policy with whatever people he believes to be most helpful.

So let us have 15 departments, which should include the director of the budget as the representative of the interests of all of us who are burdened with taxes.

Prof. Kissinger insists that "a new international order is inconceivable without a significant American contribution." He doesn't suggest, however, what kind of organization can be developed which will not be plagued by Communist subversion of the governments of small countries so as to influence their votes in the General Assembly of the United Nations.

Prof. Kissinger lays stress on the arms race and the importance of controlling it, and he declares that "a new look at American national security policy is essential.

He believes, of course, that more emphasis should be placed on reaching agreements on arms control. He feels that some of the weaker countries have not been able to add much strength to the multipower alliances.

He doesn't think that the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization or the Central Treaty Organization or even the North Atlantic Treaty Organization has been effective. He calls attention to the fact that Europe has evaded "our entreaties to play a global role," and that Europeans do not consider their interests at stake when America becomes involved on other continents.

THE IMPRESSION that Prof. Kissinger's paper leaves is that Europeans must be persuaded to assume much greater responsibility, not merely through military arrangements but in what he calls "a degree of political co-operation which links the fate of each partner with the survival of all the others."

Prof. Kissinger is by no means an isolationist. He reveals rather a sincere desire to see a better system of alliances in the world which, he implies, can do more to preserve peace.

RAYMOND MOLEY

The Pattern Of Administration

It's doubtful whether any new Cabinet officer ever took over the department to which he was assigned without big and bright ideas about how it should be reorganized. And the 12 good men and true who were presented by President-elect Nixon will be no exceptions.

No doubt they will find, as the months pass, that they will have their hands full trying to understand the meaning and purpose of bureaucratic monstrosities over which, at least nominally, they must preside.

There has been a proposal made that the Department of Health, Education and Welfare absorb the two latest members — Housing and Urban Development and Transportation — into a vast new entity called the Department of Human Resources.

But any such semantic change (for the present bureaus and agencies would still be there) would encounter not only the consent of Congress but the willingness of the new secretaries, George Romney and John Volpe, to give up the honors and perquisites they have so gladly assumed.

Once seated, a department head cherishes his office like a cat seeking the warmest place before the fireplace.

There was talk about the merger of Commerce with Labor a while ago but that failed. And from another source there has come a suggestion about merging Agriculture and Interior in a big affair perhaps to be called a Department of Natural Resources.

Assuredly there is overlapping. I offer one small example:

The Rural Electrification Administration (Agriculture) has given a loan to a co-operative in Alaska to minister to 20,000 Indians, Eskimos and Alsuts in 95 villages. This will involve co-operation among the Office of Economic Opportunity (the President's office), the Bureau of Indian Affairs (Interior), the Department of Labor and the state of Alaska.

Throughout the federal establishment overlapping is so common that there is a large number of bureaucrats in all departments to look after overlapping.

As we look back into the origins of the present departments we find that for the most part (except in those which existed under President Washington) they were created because either a function in an existing department became important enough to claim individual recognition or because a lot of new activities were created by Congress and needed to be nicely packaged in one new department.

The general theory (if there has been a theory) has been that a department represents certain broad interests either in the government itself (Defense or Post Office) or in the private sector (Commerce, Labor, Agriculture) or a lot of new activities assumed by the federal government which were formerly state, local or private affairs. And that the heads of such departments speak for those interests to the President, Congress and the public generally. They are thus the voices of special interests.

Later on we may see, as we have seen in the past, struggles between department heads over the control of agencies. One example of this war of acquisition was the long fight in the 1930s when Secretary Harold Ickes tried to take the Forest Service into his Interior Department and away from Henry Wallace's Department of Agriculture.

SO FAR AS the present Department of HEW is concerned, it has really grown to such proportions as to be unmanageable. Instead of absorbing more, it should be divided into three new departments — health, education and welfare.

The Cabinet itself has long ceased to be a place where the president can make policy. In the Kennedy years, Cabinet meetings were practically dispensed with. The president makes policy with whatever people he believes to be most helpful.

So let us have 15 departments, which should include the director of the budget as the representative of the interests of all of us who are burdened with taxes.

How Can I?

By ANNE ASHLEY

Q. — How can I remove catsup stains from fabrics?

A. — Since age makes these stains hard to deal with, act promptly. Flush as much of the stain out as possible in a fairly concentrated solution of neutral detergent and water. Lubricate the remaining portions of the stains with glycerin, working it in with the blunt edge of a knife or the back of a spoon. Then flush again with the water-detergent solution.

Q.—How can I color shellac?

A.—You can color shellac to any shade by slowly adding spirit soluble aniline dyes dissolved in alcohol, then strained.

How Can I?

By ANNE ASHLEY

Q. — How can I remove catsup stains from fabrics?

A. — Since age makes these stains hard to deal with, act promptly. Flush as much of the stain out as possible in a fairly concentrated solution of neutral detergent and water. Lubricate the remaining portions of the stains with glycerin, working it in with the blunt edge of a knife or the back of a spoon. Then flush again with the water-detergent solution.

Q.—How can I color shellac?

A.—You can color shellac to any shade by slowly adding spirit soluble aniline dyes dissolved in alcohol, then strained.

MOMENT OF MEDITATION

Sharing Christ With Others

Carefully read this account as recorded in Jno. 1: 43-45. "The day following Jesus would go forth into Galilee, and findeth Philip, and saith unto him, Follow Me. Now Philip was of Bethsaida, the city of Andrew and Peter. Philip findeth Nathanael, and saith unto him, We have found him, of whom Moses in the law, and the prophets, did write, Jesus of Nazareth, the son of Joseph."

In this account we read about Philip receiving the invitation from Christ to follow Him. This was such a wonderful experience to Philip that he found Nathanael and told him concerning what he had found. The Jews had been looking for Jesus, the son of God. Philip had found him and at once wanted to share Him with others. Philip invited Nathanael by saying, "Come and see." Nathanael accepted this invitation and came to Christ.

As we read this account, we are impressed with the fact that those who are fortunate to find the Christ begin immediately wanting to share Him with other people. This is as it should be. When men today learn about the Son of God and are obedient to His Will, they in turn begin to show concern that others have the opportunity to learn about Christ. Finding Christ is good news that needs to be shared.

We would naturally want to share Christ because he came into the world so that we could be saved from our sins. Jno. 1:29. ". . . . Behold the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world." Jesus said concerning his mission in the world that He had come to seek and to save those who are lost. Lk. 19:10. What wonderful news this is. How great it is to learn that even though we have sinned and have come short of the Glory of God, there is hope through the sacrifice of Christ for us. To men who were lost in sin, the news that Christ has come is great news. When we find the salvation that we seek, we would naturally want to tell others about it.

Salvation in Christ is based on doing the commandments of Christ. Jesus asked why men would call him Lord and still not do the things which he commanded. Lk. 6:46. The great Savior of the world has commanded that we believe in Him and that we be baptized to that we could receive the salvation which we seek. Mk. 16: 16. If we really believe in Christ, we would certainly not refuse to obey His commands.

Yes, friends the greatest news that we have ever heard is the fact that Christ has provided salvation for mankind. We should be so happy at the discovery of fact that we would begin at once to share Christ with others.

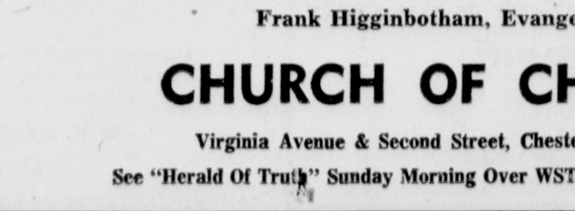
MOMENT OF MEDITATION



Sharing Christ With Others

Carefully read this account as recorded in Jno. 1: 43-45. "The day following Jesus would go forth into Galilee, and findeth Philip, and saith unto him, Follow Me. Now Philip was of Bethsaida, the city of Andrew and Peter. Philip findeth Nathanael, and saith unto him, We have found him, of whom Moses in the law, and the prophets, did write, Jesus of Nazareth, the son of Joseph."

In this account we read about Philip receiving the invitation from Christ to follow Him. This was such a wonderful experience to Philip that he found Nathanael and told him concerning what he had found. The Jews had been looking for Jesus, the son of God. Philip had found him and at once wanted to share Him with others. Philip invited Nathanael by saying, "Come and see." Nathanael accepted this invitation and came to Christ.

As we read this account, we are impressed with the fact that those who are fortunate to find the Christ begin immediately wanting to share Him with other people. This is as it should be. When men today learn about the Son of God and are obedient to His Will, they in turn begin to show concern that others have the opportunity to learn about Christ. Finding Christ is good news that needs to be shared.

We would naturally want to share Christ because he came into the world so that we could be saved from our sins. Jno. 1:29. " . . . . Behold the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world." Jesus said concerning his mission in the world that He had come to seek and to save those who are lost. Lk. 19:10. What wonderful news this is. How great it is to learn that even though we have sinned and have come short of the Glory of God, there is hope through the sacrifice of Christ for us. To men who were lost in sin, the news that Christ has come is great news. When we find the salvation that we seek, we would naturally want to tell others about it.

Salvation in Christ is based on doing the commandments of Christ. Jesus asked why men would call him Lord and still not do the things which he commanded. Lk. 6:46. The great Savior of the world has commanded that we believe in Him and that we be baptized to that we could receive the salvation which we seek. Mk. 16: 16. If we really believe in Christ, we would certainly not refuse to obey His commands.

Yes, friends the greatest news that we have ever heard is the fact that Christ has provided salvation for mankind. We should be so happy at the discovery of fact that we would begin at once to share Christ with others.

I led them with cords of compassion.—(Hos. 11:4).

Even where there is not another person around, we are never alone. We have the presence of God right with us. This does not mean that we do not need other persons in our life, for surely we all do. But when we rise out of feelings of loneliness or dejection, when we feel close to God, held in His warm and loving care, we find that this loving care includes not only God's love but also the love of other persons, for God's love finds expression through people.

Christmas Reverie

Copyright 1968 Keister Advertising Service, Inc., Strasburg, Va.

Christmas—and we crunch along the rutted lane to the house where Grandpa waits, white hair shining in the candlelight, to throw open the door before the biggest tree a child has ever seen.

Christmas—and I cry as I unpack the cardboard manger scene I made as a child, that Mother had set up every year 'till now.

Christmas—and our little girl kneels tenderly beside a homemade manger. Two brothers flank her, their shepherd hats askew, as Daddy reads by firelight, "And there were in the same country shepherds..."

Christmas—and in a world that knows war, bitterness, and pain, I praise God for the Babe who "grew in grace" and demonstrated perfect Love.

Christmas—and candlelight gleams on the altar of your church and mine as we thank God for the birthday of a King.

I led them with cords of compassion.—(Hos. 11:4).

Even where there is not another person around, we are never alone. We have the presence of God right with us. This does not mean that we do not need other persons in our life, for surely we all do. But when we rise out of feelings of loneliness or dejection, when we feel close to God, held in His warm and loving care, we find that this loving care includes not only God's love but also the love of other persons, for God's love finds expression through people.

Christmas Reverie

Copyright 1968 Keister Advertising Service, Inc., Strasburg, Va.

Christmas—and we crunch along the rutted lane to the house where Grandpa waits, white hair shining in the candlelight, to throw open the door before the biggest tree a child has ever seen.

Christmas—and I cry as I unpack the cardboard manger scene I made as a child, that Mother had set up every year 'till now.

Christmas—and our little girl kneels tenderly beside a homemade manger. Two brothers flank her, their shepherd hats askew, as Daddy reads by firelight, "And there were in the same country shepherds..."

Christmas—and in a world that knows war, bitterness, and pain, I praise God for the Babe who "grew in grace" and demonstrated perfect Love.

Christmas—and candlelight gleams on the altar of your church and mine as we thank God for the birthday of a King.

Christmas Tree For Johnny

EAST LIVERPOOL REVIEW
FeaturePages
East Liverpool, Ohio, Saturday, Dec. 21, 1968—Page 8

IT WAS DARK AND COLD when Johnny awoke in his bedroom in the little white frame cottage that huddled against the hillside halfway between Trentvale St. and Dresden Ave.

Frost was thick on the window panes and Johnny could see his breath emerging as a white vapor when he raised his head from the pillow in a vain attempt to peer through the slowly lightening darkness toward the Freeway. There was one warm spot near the foot of the bed, where his brown dog, Mutt, was curled nose-to-tail on top of the blankets.

Johnny pulled the blankets around his shoulders again and stretched out on his back to think of the day ahead. It was Saturday, a special Saturday, because Christmas was only four days away. It meant more days without homework, because he would not go back to his first grade class at Westgate until after New Year's — and that seemed weeks away.

Johnny thought of the Christmas carols the children sang on the bus on the way home from school the last day before the holiday and the way his classmates talked about all the good things they anticipated from Santa Claus. But when he whistled one of the carols last night, he remembered, his mother's face turned grim and she said in a flat voice:

"Johnny, I don't think we'll be able to have a tree again this year." Johnny could remember only once they'd had a tree, away back in the days of the good times, before his father went away. But last year and the year before that, his mother had said: "I don't think we'll be able to have a tree this year."

Johnny knew the grimness about the tree meant no gifts, no bright lights, no table laden with food, no happy visits with relatives — all the things that had ended when his father went away.

JOHNNY REMEMBERED his father as a hairy giant who grasped him in his huge hands and hurled him toward the ceiling, catching him again as he fell, breathless, toward the floor. He remembered his father's scratchy face and the strong smell of tobacco and sweat, and sometimes alcohol. But he could not remember his father's face, except vaguely as the countenance of a towering giant.

His mother, Velma, rarely mentioned Johnny's father, and when she did it was in mysterious phrases about "Daddy's gone away; yes, maybe he'll come back someday." But Johnny had been waiting for a long time and his father's absence seemed as though it would never end. It seemed they would have to wait endlessly for the return of his father and then they could have a tree and a real Christmas again. Johnny knew Santa Claus did not stop at houses where there was no Christmas tree.

Mutt growled and opened one eye at the roar of a big diesel truck on the Freeway. Johnny leaped from bed, hurried into his denim trousers and shoes and dashed toward the kitchen, hoping the fire in the coal stove had not gone out overnight. Mutt was close behind, snuffling at his heels, because he knew there would be something for him to eat when Johnny had his breakfast.

The boy rattled the shaker of the coal range, peering steadily into the firebox for signs of red embers that would mean he had hopes of fanning flames alive. But the soot and ashes were black and cold.

Hurried by the edge of the cold, he split some long, thin slivers of kindling from the remains of an orange crate, piled them on top of crumpled newspapers and set them alight. As the wood crackled and spit hot orange flames, he opened the dampers and carefully placed several small lumps of coal on top of the wood.

THE COAL SMOKED and then began to flame slightly. Johnny replaced the lid and then hurried to the kitchen door, teaching outside to pick up the quart of milk sitting there. The milk was frozen, he found, and a long narrow neck of ice pushed upward from the top of the bottle.

He placed the milk at the back of the stove to thaw gradually and then trotted back into the bedroom for his socks and a flannel shirt. He heard his mother stirring restlessly in her bedroom, but the noise subsided in a moment.

Mutt was curled up near the stove when he returned to the kitchen, waiting for the warmth that he knew centered there. Johnnny pulled a loaf of bread from the cupboard and tore up three slices into tiny squares. He fed one slice of the bread to his friend Mutt a square at a time and then placed the balance in a blue and white bowl, spilling milk on it to soften it.

Johnny stood close to the stove, spooning the bread into his mouth, allowing the slowly growing warmth to seep into his back and his legs. He fed two larger lumps of coal to the stove and was rewarded with a thick cloud of smoke and the crackle of flames that meant there would be real warmth soon.

"Mutt, I think you and I can find a tree for us, even though Mom doesn't have the money to buy one," he told the dog. "I know there's lots of pine trees out on the hills in the hollow. Nobody would care if we cut one, just a little one, so we could have our own Christmas tree.

"AFTER ALL, I'm a big boy now, going on 7. Mom said so last night when she told me not to expect a tree. I guess you and me could go out onto the hill and get us a nice tree and be back before supper time."

The dog reacted at the word "go," one of the few human sounds he understood. Mutt crawled reluctantly from his warm spot and headed for the kitchen door, standing expectantly and waiting for Johnny to turn the knob.

"Not yet, not yet, Mutt," Johnny told the dog. "First we have to get ready for the trip and then we have to find my good old Boy Scout Ax to chop the tree with. We'll even have to carry our lunch, because we might be gone for a long time.

Johnny hunted in his closet for a pair of boots, a jacket, a scarf, a cap and mittens — all the things he wore on sled riding jaunts. As an after thought, he pulled on a second pair of socks because the holes in the shoes threatened to make his feet cold, despite the boots.

He found his Boy Scout ax in the coal bucket behind the stove. He sharpened the blade with a few strokes of a file as he had seen his mother do before splitting kindling. Then Johnny hunted up two more slices of bread, spread them with oleomargarine and jelly, wrapped them carefully in newspaper and placed them in a brown paper bag.

"That's my knapsack, Mutt," he told the dog. And then he dropped in another slice of bread for Mutt's lunch. Johnny pulled a piece of wrapping paper from a drawer in the kitchen cupboard, found a stub of a pencil and sat down at the table to print a note for his mother.

"Mom," he wrote. "Me and Mutt have gone out the hollow to find us a Christmas tree. We will be home in time for supper. We will try and find a nice one. Johnny."

Then he stuck the handle of the ax in his belt, dropped two more lumps of coal on the fire, closed the damper and hurred out the door, trailed by the dog. The sky was overcast and a chilly breeze blew across the porch.

"Come on, Mutt," Johnny said. "We have a long way to go to find a nice tree. And he strode down the steps onto the frozen surface of the unpaved street, trailed by his dog, on the way to their adventure in California Hollow. He could feel the chill of the frozen ground through the boots, the two pairs of socks and the thin soles of his shoes. Mutt frisked ahead, unaware of the chill and the dark, threatening sky.

Clutching at trees to slow his descent down the steep grade, Johnny stopped once to watch the heavy traffic on the Freeway. It was lined with cars, whizzing at high speed on the smooth concrete surface. He could see piles of packages in many of the autos and realized that some folks even now were starting on a long Christmas weekend that would stretch until the following Thursday or Friday.

Mutt stopped at the edge of the blacktop pavement on Dresden Ave. and looked back for his master. Johnny loosened his grasp on the trunk of a small sapling and took a huge step. His momentum carried him down the hillside rapidly until he stopped short alongside Mutt.

"O.K., boy," he said to the dog. "Now we'll head straight out the hollow. When we get out there where there's no houses anymore, we'll cut up over the hillside and start looking for our tree. Watch out for the cars!" he shouted, as Mutt dodged off the pavement at the sound of an auto appoaching from the rear.

JOHNNY AND his dog, keeping well off the pavement, trudged along the rough cinder berm with a cold, pale sun glinting on their backs. They passed all the familiar landmarks — the big food store, tht restaurant, the antique shop and the ruins of a kennel.

The wind was blowing from the west, cutting the boy's face, and he wished he had remembered the scarf on the dresser in his bedroom. He pulled the cap down over the tops of his ears and tugged at the collar to get protection for his chin and mouth. Still Mutt trotted on, oblivious to the cold.

After what seemed like a long, long time, they came to a stretch of the highway that had no homes or buildings on either side. Johnny pointed up a sheer embankment and said to his dog: "Up there, Mutt, that's where we want to go. Nobody lives there and nobody will care if we cut ourselves a little tree." Stooping crablike, he scuttled up the steep hillside, catching at vines for handholds and using tiny ruts for toeholds. Mutt was far ahead of him.

As they reached the edgt of the woods, Johnny called a halt and shouted to the dog. The boy and the dog sat side by side on the dry, frozen grass, looking upward at the traffic on the Freeway and watching smoke curl upward from the chimney of a house far above on the Westfield Rd.

Johnny thought about the hunt ahead of him. He decided that they must cut a tree not much larger than he was tall and that they should select one close to the highway, if possible, so that it would not have to be dragged a great distance through the thick underbrush. But it had to be a nice tree, well-shaped, he decided so that his mothter would allow him to take it into the house and decorate it.

"IF WE GET a nice tree, Santa Claus may take it off the front porch and put it up in the corner and decorate it, like he did the other time," Johnny told Mutt. "And when I leave my note for him, I am going to ask him to leave a couple of cans of real dog food for you, so you can have a Christmas dinner, too."

"Come on, Mutt," the boy said, springing to his feet. "We have to find that tree and get it cut and get started home." He headed up the steep hillside, panting a little as his feet slipped on the frozen ground. He could feel the handle of the ax banging on his hip. Mutt was ahead again, leading the way as though he knew just where to find a nice tree.

Dodging between trees and pushing briars and brush aside with his hands, Johnny walked in a straight line up the hillside. There were big trees and little trees and shrubs of all kinds, but no evergreens. He stopped near the brow of the hill and looked back along their path. Still no evergreens. To the left he saw the ground sloping off sharply into a deep ravine and rising just as steeply on the other side.

"Come on, Mutt," he said. "We'll go down into that hollow and up the other side. There sure must be a nice little pine tree down in their somewhere." The dog whirled and led the way as Johnny turned to his left and scuttled down the hillside. At the foot of the grade he could see a small frozen stream, some large stones, some logs and mounds of leaves.

The sure-footed dog dashed down the long hillside in a moment, but Johnny followed more slowly, looking to the right and left for a flash of vivid green that would tell him he had found his tree at last. But he found nothing. Mutt was licking at the frozen surface of the stream, seeking water, when Johnny got to the narrow defile at the bottom of the grade.

Johnny broke the ice with a sharp blow of his heel, scooped out a handful of water for himself and then stepped back to allow his dog to drink.

JOHNNY SAT DOWN on a log while Mutt lapped at the water. Leaning his back against the trunk of a tree, he thought of the lunch in the brown paper sack.

He thought it must be noontime or later. But since the hunt for the tree had gone so badly, he decided to eat half of his sandwich and save the other half for later in the day. Unwrapping the newspaper carefully, he tore the sandwich in half. Then he extracted Mutt's slice of bread and tore it in half also.

"Come on, Mutt, we'll eat our lunch now and rest a little while," he said. The dog ran to his master eagerly, snatched at the dry bread and swallowed it hungrily in one gulp. Johnny chewed his bread and jelly carefully, aware that it would not fill the void in his stomach.

"Yessir, Mutt, we are going to ask Santa Claus to leave you some canned dog food," Johnny told the expectant dog. He gave Mutt a piece of crust and watched it disappear instantly. "He might leave us some nuts and oranges and candy like he did a long time ago when Daddy was home. That time we had turkey and sweet potatoes and fruit cake and pumpkin pie. That was the time I got my Boy Scout ax, but that was before I had you," he told the dog. Mutt sat expectantly, waiting for another bite of the bread.

"That's all, now," Johnny told the dog. "We have to climb up that big hill on the other side of the creek, all the way to the top, and look and look for a Christmas tree. And when we get it home, we'll have more bread and jelly before supper. Boy, I wish I had brought two sandwiches!"

WHEN JOHNNY started up the hillside opposite the little stream, he was surprised to find a fine mist of rain drifting through the air. Blowing from the east, it struck him in the face. The dampness soaked quickly through his jacket and his shirt and he felt a chill through his chest.

Mutt stopped several times and shook his long brown fur as they climbed the steep embankment. Johnny's feet began to slip on the wet leaves and grass. Mutt pushed far ahead of him. He called to the dog to wait and — attempting to hurry on the wet ground — found himself flat on his face.

They stopped near the top of the long grade to take another breather. Johnny put his hand on Mutt's broad shoulders. Surprisingly, the fur underneath felt dry. "I guess you're waterproof, boy," he said. "This rain is making me cold," he told the dog. "We have to hurry and find a tree." Mutt sat with his tongue lolling and seemed to nod as though he understood. Johnny pushed himself to his feet, feeling tired and still hungry.

As they emerged onto the very peak of the hillside, Johnny saw that the rain was changing to big, wet snowflakes. Peering through the shifting white curtain far ahead, he saw several green pines standing out amid the stark brown of the barren woods. "This has to be it," he thought. "I'm tired and Mutt's tired and our feet are getting wet and we're hungry. I have to find a tree here or give up and go home."

Trailed by the dog, he trotted down a short stretch of grade to the little grove of pines. He saw tall, scrawny evergreens, short, misshapen pines and others with their lower branches missing or their tops chopped out. But right on the very edge was a perfectly-shaped pine with a straight trunk and glossy, firm needles. He stood alongside to measure it and found it reached just to his forehead.

PULLING THE ax from his belt, Johnny told Mutt: "This is just the right tree. We can put it on a little box in the corner to make it seem taller. Isn't it pretty? Momma will like this one! I'll bet Santa Claus will be proud to leave our presents under such a nice little tree." Mutt, glad to rest, sat down on a pile of brown pine needles and watched while Johnny surveyed the tiny trunk of the pine. He decided to chop it off close to the ground level to retain every possible inch of its height.

The snow was swirling thicker as Johnny struck the first blow against the tree's trunk. The ax rebounded as though it had struck a rubber ball, making just the smallest nick in the bark of the trunk. Johnny realized the job would take longer than he had expected.

After all, he had never cut a tree before, he told himself. The arms of his jacket turned white with snow and he found his feet slipping more and more frequently as he swung manfully at the tree with the little ax.

Johnny worked around to the other side of the trunk and started a new cut. Perhaps the wood was softer on this side, he thought, or maybe he could work better without the snow blowing in his eyes. Tired, with blistered hands, he finally sat down again to rest. The snow piled up on his shoulders. It turned Mutt into a white stranger that made Johnny think of a polar bear. He saw that the snow was melting on his paper sack, threatening to soak the remains of his sandwich and Mutt's lunch.

Moving to the sheltered side of a maple's trunk, Johnny opened the sack, unwrapped the half of his sandwich and the dog's bread and called to Mutt. The dog ran to him eagerly, anxious for the two bites of stale bread. Johnny doled out Mutt's bread with one hand while he consumed his sandwich.

"I WISH I HAD saved the orange I got at the Lions Club party," Johnny told Mutt. "Boy, that would be good now! They gave me a new flannel shirt, too, but that has to be saved to wear to school, Momma says. It's nice to have something that fits and hasn't got patches on the elbows." Maybe, Mary, the little girl in the next row, would notice him in his new shirt with the yellow and brown plaid design, he thought to himself.

Determined to finish his job quickly and head for home, Johnny arose, walked up to the little evergreen and struck it three more sharp blows — all in the same spot. The tiny tree toppled and fell into the snow. Elated, Johnny stuck the ax handle in his belt underneath his jacket, grasped the tree by the butt end of the trunk and whistled to his dog. Mutt, knowing it was time to head for home, was close on his heels as he trudged up the tiny grade and paused a moment before heading down the long hillside that would take him back to the highway.

He looked toward the spot where the Freeway should be, but the valley was obscured by a thick veil of whirling snowflakes. The snow seemed several inches thick. And darkness was closing in, he thought.

Mutt stared into the whirling snow and wrinkled his nose, sniffing, as though seeking the way to the highway. Johnny struck off, dragging the tree, and immediately lost his footing. He rolled several times on the steep hillside and then stopped against the trunk of a tree. His Christmas tree, rolling and whipped by the wind, halted on top of him.

JOHNNY MOVED the tiny tree to windward to break the sharp breeze. He pulled Mutt to his side, deciding to rest awhile. The dog turned his back to the wind and huddled close to Johnny. Together they sat and watched the snow build up. Johnny dozed and dreamed and the dog stayed by his side. He did not know how long he sat there, but it

Christmas Tree For Johnny

IT WAS DARK AND COLD when Johnny awoke in his bedroom in the little white frame cottage that huddled against the hillside halfway between Trentvale St. and Dresden Ave.

Frost was thick on the window panes and Johnny could see his breath emerging as a white vapor when he raised his head from the pillow in a vain attempt to peer through the slowly lightening darkness toward the Freeway. There was one warm spot near the foot of the bed, where his brown dog, Mutt, was curled nose-to-tail on top of the blankets.

Johnny pulled the blankets around his shoulders again and stretched out on his back to think of the day ahead. It was Saturday, a special Saturday, because Christmas was only four days away. It meant more days without homework, because he would not go back to his first grade class at Westgate until after New Year's — and that seemed weeks away.

Johnny thought of the Christmas carols the children sang on the bus on the way home from school the last day before the holiday and the way his classmates talked about all the good things they anticipated from Santa Claus. But when he whistled one of the carols last night, he remembered, his mother's face turned grim and she said in a flat voice:

"Johnny, I don't think we'll be able to have a tree again this year." Johnny could remember only once they'd had a tree, away back in the days of the good times, before his father went away. But last year and the year before that, his mother had said: "I don't think we'll be able to have a tree this year."

Johnny knew the grimness about the tree meant no gifts, no bright lights, no table laden with food, no happy visits with relatives — all the things that had ended when his father went away.

JOHNNY REMEMBERED his father as a hairy giant who grasped him in his huge hands and hurled him toward the ceiling, catching him again as he fell, breathless, toward the floor. He remembered his father's scratchy face and the strong smell of tobacco and sweat, and sometimes alcohol. But he could not remember his father's face, except vaguely as the countenance of a towering giant.

His mother, Velma, rarely mentioned Johnny's father, and when she did it was in mysterious phrases about "Daddy's gone away; yes, maybe he'll come back someday." But Johnny had been waiting for a long time and his father's absence seemed as though it would never end. It seemed they would have to wait endlessly for the return of his father and then they could have a tree and a real Christmas again. Johnny knew Santa Claus did not stop at houses where there was no Christmas tree.

Mutt growled and opened one eye at the roar of a big diesel truck on the Freeway. Johnny leaped from bed, hurried into his denim trousers and shoes and dashed toward the kitchen, hoping the fire in the coal stove had not gone out overnight. Mutt was close behind, snuffling at his heels, because he knew there would be something for him to eat when Johnny had his breakfast.

The boy rattled the shaker of the coal range, peering steadily into the firebox for signs of red embers that would mean he had hopes of fanning flames alive. But the soot and ashes were black and cold.

Hurried by the edge of the cold, he split some long, thin slivers of kindling from the remains of an orange crate, piled them on top of crumpled newspapers and set them alight. As the wood crackled and spit hot orange flames, he opened the dampers and carefully placed several small lumps of coal on top of the wood.

THE COAL SMOKED and then began to flame slightly. Johnny replaced the lid and then hurried to the kitchen door, reaching outside to pick up the quart of milk sitting there. The milk was frozen, he found, and a long narrow neck of ice pushed upward from the top of the bottle.

He placed the milk at the back of the stove to thaw gradually and then trotted back into the bedroom for his socks and a flannel shirt. He heard his mother stirring restlessly in her bedroom, but the noise subsided in a moment.

Mutt was curled up near the stove when he returned to the kitchen, waiting for the warmth that he knew centered there. Johnnny pulled a loaf of bread from the cupboard and tore up three slices into tiny squares. He fed one slice of the bread to his friend Mutt a square at a time and then placed the balance in a blue and white bowl, spilling milk on it to soften it.

Johnny stood close to the stove, spooning the bread into his mouth, allowing the slowly growing warmth to seep into his back and his legs. He fed two larger lumps of coal to the stove and was rewarded with a thick cloud of smoke and the crackle of flames that meant there would be real warmth soon.

"Mutt, I think you and I can find a tree for us, even though Mom doesn't have the money to buy one," he told the dog. "I know there's lots of pine trees out on the hills in the hollow. Nobody would care if we cut one, just a little one, so we could have our own Christmas tree.

"AFTER ALL, I'm a big boy now, going on 7. Mom said so last night when she told me not to expect a tree. I guess you and me could go out onto the hill and get us a nice tree and be back before supper time."

The dog reacted at the word "go," one of the few human sounds he understood. Mutt crawled reluctantly from his warm spot and headed for the kitchen door, standing expectantly and waiting for Johnny to turn the knob.

"Not yet, not yet, Mutt," Johnny told the dog. "First we have to get ready for the trip and then we have to find my good old Boy Scout Ax to chop the tree with. We'll even have to carry our lunch, because we might be gone for a long time.

Johnny hunted in his closet for a pair of boots, a jacket, a scarf, a cap and mittens — all the things he wore on sled riding jaunts. As an after thought, he pulled on a second pair of socks because the holes in the shoes threatened to make his feet cold, despite the boots.

He found his Boy Scout ax in the coal bucket behind the stove. He sharpened the blade with a few strokes of a file as he had seen his mother do before splitting kindling. Then Johnny hunted up two more slices of bread, spread them with oleomargarine and jelly, wrapped them carefully in newspaper and placed them in a brown paper bag.

"That's my knapsack, Mutt," he told the dog. And then he dropped in another slice of bread for Mutt's lunch. Johnny pulled a piece of wrapping paper from a drawer in the kitchen cupboard, found a stub of a pencil and sat down at the table to print a note for his mother.

"Mom," he wrote. "Me and Mutt have gone out the hollow to find us a Christmas tree. We will be home in time for supper. We will try and find a nice one. Johnny."

Then he stuck the handle of the ax in his belt, dropped two more lumps of coal on the fire, closed the damper and hurred out the door, trailed by the dog. The sky was overcast and a chilly breeze blew across the porch.

"Come on, Mutt," Johnny said. "We have a long way to go to find a nice tree. And he strode down the steps onto the frozen surface of the unpaved street, trailed by his dog, on the way to their adventure in California Hollow. He could feel the chill of the frozen ground through the boots, the two pairs of socks and the thin soles of his shoes. Mutt frisked ahead, unaware of the chill and the dark, threatening sky.

Clutching at trees to slow his descent down the steep grade, Johnny stopped once to watch the heavy traffic on the Freeway. It was lined with cars, whizzing at high speed on the smooth concrete surface. He could see piles of packages in many of the autos and realized that some folks even now were starting on a long Christmas weekend that would stretch until the following Thursday or Friday.

Mutt stopped at the edge of the blacktop pavement on Dresden Ave. and looked back for his master. Johnny loosened his grasp on the trunk of a small sapling and took a huge step. His momentum carried him down the hillside rapidly until he stopped short alongside Mutt.

"O.K., boy," he said to the dog. "Now we'll head straight out the hollow. When we get out there where there's no houses anymore, we'll cut up over the hillside and start looking for our tree. Watch out for the cars!" he shouted, as Mutt dodged off the pavement at the sound of an auto appoaching from the rear.

JOHNNY AND his dog, keeping well off the pavement, trudged along the rough cinder berm with a cold, pale sun glinting on their backs. They passed all the familiar landmarks — the big food store, tht restaurant, the antique shop and the ruins of a kennel.

The wind was blowing from the west, cutting the boy's face, and he wished he had remembered the scarf on the dresser in his bedroom. He pulled the cap down over the tops of his ears and tugged at the collar to get protection for his chin and mouth. Still Mutt trotted on, oblivious to the cold.

After what seemed like a long, long time, they came to a stretch of the highway that had no homes or buildings on either side. Johnny pointed up a sheer embankment and said to his dog: "Up there, Mutt, that's where we want to go. Nobody lives there and nobody will care if we cut ourselves a little tree." Stooping crablike, he scuttled up the steep hillside, catching at vines for handholds and using tiny ruts for toeholds. Mutt was far ahead of him.

As they reached the edgt of the woods, Johnny called a halt and shouted to the dog. The boy and the dog sat side by side on the dry, frozen grass, looking upward at the traffic on the Freeway and watching smoke curl upward from the chimney of a house far above on the Westfield Rd.

Johnny thought about the hunt ahead of him. He decided that they must cut a tree not much larger than he was tall and that they should select one close to the highway, if possible, so that it would not have to be dragged a great distance through the thick underbrush. But it had to be a nice tree, well-shaped, he decided so that his mothter would allow him to take it into the house and decorate it.

"IF WE GET a nice tree, Santa Claus may take it off the front porch and put it up in the corner and decorate it, like he did the other time," Johnny told Mutt. "And when I leave my note for him, I am going to ask him to leave a couple of cans of real dog food for you, so you can have a Christmas dinner, too."

"Come on, Mutt," the boy said, springing to his feet. "We have to find that tree and get it cut and get started home." He headed up the steep hillside, panting a little as his feet slipped on the frozen ground. He could feel the handle of the ax banging on his hip. Mutt was ahead again, leading the way as though he knew just where to find a nice tree.

Dodging between trees and pushing briars and brush aside with his hands, Johnny walked in a straight line up the hillside. There were big trees and little trees and shrubs of all kinds, but no evergreens. He stopped near the brow of the hill and looked back along their path. Still no evergreens. To the left he saw the ground sloping off sharply into a deep ravine and rising just as steeply on the other side.

"Come on, Mutt," he said. "We'll go down into that hollow and up the other side. There sure must be a nice little pine tree down in their somewhere." The dog whirled and led the way as Johnny turned to his left and scuttled down the hillside. At the foot of the grade he could see a small frozen stream, some large stones, some logs and mounds of leaves.

The sure-footed dog dashed down the long hillside in a moment, but Johnny followed more slowly, looking to the right and left for a flash of vivid green that would tell him he had found his tree at last. But he found nothing. Mutt was licking at the frozen surface of the stream, seeking water, when Johnny got to the narrow defile at the bottom of the grade.

Johnny broke the ice with a sharp blow of his heel, scooped out a handful of water for himself and then stepped back to allow his dog to drink.

JOHNNY SAT DOWN on a log while Mutt lapped at the water. Leaning his back against the trunk of a tree, he thought of the lunch in the brown paper sack.

He thought it must be noontime or later. But since the hunt for the tree had gone so badly, he decided to eat half of his sandwich and save the other half for later in the day. Unwrapping the newspaper carefully, he tore the sandwich in half. Then he extracted Mutt's slice of bread and tore it in half also.

"Come on, Mutt, we'll eat our lunch now and rest a little while," he said. The dog ran to his master eagerly, snatched at the dry bread and swallowed it hungrily in one gulp. Johnny chewed his bread and jelly carefully, aware that it would not fill the void in his stomach.

"Yessir, Mutt, we are going to ask Santa Claus to leave you some canned dog food," Johnny told the expectant dog. He gave Mutt a piece of crust and watched it disappear instantly. "He might leave us some nuts and oranges and candy like he did a long time ago when Daddy was home. That time we had turkey and sweet potatoes and fruit cake and pumpkin pie. That was the time I got my Boy Scout ax, but that was before I had you," he told the dog. Mutt sat expectantly, waiting for another bite of the bread.

"That's all, now," Johnny told the dog. "We have to climb up that big hill on the other side of the creek, all the way to the top, and look and look for a Christmas tree. And when we get it home, we'll have more bread and jelly before supper. Boy, I wish I had brought two sandwiches!"

WHEN JOHNNY started up the hillside opposite the little stream, he was surprised to find a fine mist of rain drifting through the air. Blowing from the east, it struck him in the face. The dampness soaked quickly through his jacket and his shirt and he felt a chill through his chest.

Mutt stopped several times and shook his long brown fur as they climbed the steep embankment. Johnny's feet began to slip on the wet leaves and grass. Mutt pushed far ahead of him. He called to the dog to wait and — attempting to hurry on the wet ground — found himself flat on his face.

They stopped near the top of the long grade to take another breather. Johnny put his hand on Mutt's broad shoulders. Surprisingly, the fur underneath felt dry. "I guess you're waterproof, boy," he said. "This rain is making me cold," he told the dog. "We have to hurry and find a tree." Mutt sat with his tongue lolling and seemed to nod as though he understood. Johnny pushed himself to his feet, feeling tired and still hungry.

As they emerged onto the very peak of the hillside, Johnny saw that the rain was changing to big, wet snowflakes. Peering through the shifting white curtain far ahead, he saw several green pines standing out amid the stark brown of the barren woods. "This has to be it," he thought. "I'm tired and Mutt's tired and our feet are getting wet and we're hungry. I have to find a tree here or give up and go home."

Trailed by the dog, he trotted down a short stretch of grade to the little grove of pines. He saw tall, scrawny evergreens, short, misshapen pines and others with their lower branches missing or their tops chopped out. But right on the very edge was a perfectly-shaped pine with a straight trunk and glossy, firm needles. He stood alongside to measure it and found it reached just to his forehead.

PULLING THE ax from his belt, Johnny told Mutt: "This is just the right tree. We can put it on a little box in the corner to make it seem taller. Isn't it pretty? Momma will like this one! I'll bet Santa Claus will be proud to leave our presents under such a nice little tree." Mutt, glad to rest, sat down on a pile of brown pine needles and watched while Johnny surveyed the tiny trunk of the pine. He decided to chop it off close to the ground level to retain every possible inch of its height.

The snow was swirling thicker as Johnny struck the first blow against the tree's trunk. The ax rebounded as though it had struck a rubber ball, making just the smallest nick in the bark of the trunk. Johnny realized the job would take longer than he had expected.

After all, he had never cut a tree before, he told himself. The arms of his jacket turned white with snow and he found his feet slipping more and more frequently as he swung manfully at the tree with the little ax.

Johnny worked around to the other side of the trunk and started a new cut. Perhaps the wood was softer on this side, he thought, or maybe he could work better without the snow blowing in his eyes. Tired, with blistered hands, he finally sat down again to rest. The snow piled up on his shoulders. It turned Mutt into a white stranger that made Johnny think of a polar bear. He saw that the snow was melting on his paper sack, threatening to soak the remains of his sandwich and Mutt's lunch.

Moving to the sheltered side of a maple's trunk, Johnny opened the sack, unwrapped the half of his sandwich and the dog's bread and called to Mutt. The dog ran to him eagerly, anxious for the two bites of stale bread. Johnny doled out Mutt's bread with one hand while he consumed his sandwich.

"I WISH I HAD saved the orange I got at the Lions Club party," Johnny told Mutt. "Boy, that would be good now! They gave me a new flannel shirt, too, but that has to be saved to wear to school, Momma says. It's nice to have something that fits and hasn't got patches on the elbows." Maybe, Mary, the little girl in the next row, would notice him in his new shirt with the yellow and brown plaid design, he thought to himself.

Determined to finish his job quickly and head for home, Johnny arose, walked up to the little evergreen and struck it three more sharp blows — all in the same spot. The tiny tree toppled and fell into the snow. Elated, Johnny stuck the ax handle in his belt underneath his jacket, grasped the tree by the butt end of the trunk and whistled to his dog. Mutt, knowing it was time to head for home, was close on his heels as he trudged up the tiny grade and paused a moment before heading down the long hillside that would take him back to the highway.

He looked toward the spot where the Freeway should be, but the valley was obscured by a thick veil of whirling snowflakes. The snow seemed several inches thick. And darkness was closing in, he thought.

Mutt stared into the whirling snow and wrinkled his nose, sniffing, as though seeking the way to the highway. Johnny struck off, dragging the tree, and immediately lost his footing. He rolled several times on the steep hillside and then stopped against the trunk of a tree. His Christmas tree, rolling and whipped by the wind, halted on top of him.

JOHNNY MOVED the tiny tree to windward to break the sharp breeze. He pulled Mutt to his side, deciding to rest awhile. The dog turned his back to the wind and huddled close to Johnny. Together they sat and watched the snow build up. Johnny dozed and dreamed and the dog stayed by his side. He did not know how long he sat there, but it seemed like a long time because he felt the chill creeping through his feet and up his legs. His shoes felt full of slush and his jacket was wet.

"Mutt, we have to go," Johnny told the dog. Rousing himself, he could feel the stiffness in his legs and numbness in his hands. He stamped his feet and threshed his hands against his sides in a futile attempt to rouse some warmth. Then he tugged at the tree's trunk again, starting downgrade, trailed by his dog. The darkness was thick now and the snow was heavier than any Johnny could remember.

He knew that if he continued downgrade far enough he would strike the highway. He should be able to see car headlights when he drew close to the roadway, he thought. But even the traffic sounds seemed stilled in the heavy snow. Johnny slipped and fell, righted himself and trudged on, keeping a tight grasp always on his tree. Occasionally he bumped into the trunk of a tree or wrenched his muscles when he stepped into an unseen hole.

It seemed like hours that he and Mutt had been walking down the endless hill and still it seemed to stretch on forever. Johnny stopped again to strain his eyes in the darkness, trying to penetrate the wall of white. A huge dark shape loomed up a few yards away. He thought at first of a barn or a vacant house, offering shelter. But as he drew closer, he saw it was the back of a huge billboard.

INCHING DOWNGRADE cautiously to avert another fall, Johnny approached the large blank shape. Mutt was close at his heels. Johnny worked his way around an end of the billboard and found suddenly that the wind's force was nearly stilled. The billboard, at right angles to the wind, was breaking the sharp, cold force. Johnny placed his knee carefully near the base of the billboard and sat down. Mutt moved in beside him. The thick blanket of snow felt soft and warm, now that the sharp wind was stilled. The whole world seemed silent, a white void filled with dancing, whirling snowflakes.

Loosening the muscles in his cramped legs, Johnny stretched out on the white blanket that felt so much like the feather tick in his grandmother's home. He dozed and dreamed of the promises Christmas held, now that he and Mutt had found a tree. All the world seemed timeless and silent. Johnny, warm and relaxed, felt he was safely in bed at home with his dog cuddled at his feet, waiting for Santa Claus.

The white void moved in closer. Hours went by unmeasured.

As Johnny half roused, he seemed to hear the tinkle of tiny bells and distant shouts. Turning his head, he saw a scene that dazzled his eyes and boggled his imagination.

There, in full view, riding over red and blue rooftops, was a sleigh occupied by a smiling, waving figure in a red, fur-trimmed suit. Eight tiny reindeer were straining at their harness, pulling the gift-laden sleigh effortlessly through the air. It was all so vivid and brilliant and real. . . .

"HE'S COMING to our house, Mutt," the boy whispered, dazzled by the sight. "I told you he would, if we could only find a Christmas tree. Now Santa's flying over the housetops, just like it says in the poem, and I can hear the sleigh bells tinkle just as plain! This will be the best Christmas ever — the best since Daddy went away."

The jangle of sleigh bells sounded louder and Johnny thought he heard merry shouts from the figures in the sleigh. Smiling and content, he closed his eyes and went to sleep, waiting for Christmas morning.

It was late Saturday night when Johnny's mother went to a neighbor's home to telephone police about the missing boy and his dog. The police asked the sheriff's department to help in the search, because the boy and his dog might be somewhere in the distant reaches of California Hollow, perhaps lost in the woods.

It was after dawn Sunday morning when the deputy sheriff found the three white mounds in front of the billboard just off old Dresden Ave. Brushing away the snow gingerly, he found Johnny, his dog and the little Christmas tree.

The deputy hurried to his cruiser to radio police headquarters.

"The boy's frozen to death and so is his dog, I think," he said into the microphone. It looks like they've been there since shortly after the snow started yesterday.

"Better send an ambulance out here. Tell the driver to look for the huge illuminated billboard about a half-mile outside the city limits.

"He can't miss it — it's the one with the picture of Santa Claus flying over the housetops in his sleigh. . . ."

Maharaja chicken breast is an elegant change for Sunday or company dinner. It has the scent of India. The chicken breasts are coated with a curry-flavored corn meal mixture and then fried until golden and very tender.

Curry powder, as you know, is a blend of many spices. It is available in all stores. But in India it is usually made from freshly ground spices in proportion to the needs of the special dish it is to be used for.

For your festive dinner, start with chilled pineapple juice and sesame crackers. With the chicken, serve fluffy rice with chopped cashew nuts. Buttered spinach makes a perfect vegetable, and for salad, serve sliced tomatoes and cucumbers on lettuce. Dessert might be tiny, creamy coconut tarts.

School Cleared In 'Bomb' Scare

Police and firemen searched the school, after a caller warned a bomb would go off at noon, but found nothing.

Tony LaNeve, principal, called police at 11:34 after Miss Martha Harding, secretary, reported receiving the call.

The voice, which Miss Harding said sounded like that of a young man, declared: "There's a bomb in the school. It'll go off at 12." The caller then hung up.

The students, attending an assembly in the gymnasium at the time, were removed from the building by 11:38.

School Cleared In 'Bomb' Scare

Students were removed from the building late Friday morning during a bomb scare at East Junior High School.

Police and firemen searched the school, after a caller warned a bomb would go off at noon, but found nothing.

Tony LaNeve, principal, called police at 11:34 after Miss Martha Harding, secretary, reported receiving the call.

The voice, which Miss Harding said sounded like that of a young man, declared: "There's a bomb in the school. It'll go off at 12." The caller then hung up.

Willshaw To Fill Posts

Terms Will Expire For 6 Serving With City Boards

The terms of six members of unsalaried municipal boards and commissions are scheduled to expire at midnight Dec. 31. The vacancies will be subject to appointments by Mayor George E. Willshaw.

The expiring terms are held by:

Miss Sara Heddleston, Mrs. Stella Birnbaum and Arthur T. Thomas, on the Board of Trustees of the Carnegie Public Library.

Allen Montgomery, on the City Park Commission.

Paul Zehnder, on the Board of Health.

W. Leland Thompson, on the Board of Thompson Park Commissioners.

No terms will run out at the end of the year on two other agencies — the Board of Public Utilities, which administers the water and sewage departments, and the Civil Service Commission.

EXPIRATION dates of the terms on the city boards are staggered so that a few run out at the end of each year. For instance, six ran out at the end of 1965, two expired at the end of 1966 and three ended with the close of 1967.

Holdover members of the Health Board are Dr. J. Keith Rugh, chairman, whose term runs until Dec. 31, 1970; C. Frank Dales, vice chairman, 1969; Donald Mackey, 1971, and Dr. Herschel Rubin, 1972. Terms are for five years. Howard Claypool is clerk, elected by the board.

Continuing as members of the Thompson Park Board are Judge Louis Tobin, 1969; J. Burchfield Cartwright, 1970, and Louis Yanni, 1971.

Remaining as members of the library board are Robert A. Kapp, Lawrence W. Smith and William F. Swan, whose terms run through 1969. The terms are for four years.

THE HOLDOVER members of the City Park Commission are Louis Yanni, 1969, and John Parsons, 1970. The commission was created by a vote of the people late in 1964. It administers most city recreation sites aside from Thompson Park.

The Civil Service Commission, due to remain unchanged in 1969, is comprised of Howard A. Tullis, chairman and Angelo Fiorello, both of whose terms run through 1969, and Thomas Phillips, who will serve through 1973. P. K. Calhoon is clerk, elected by the commission.

The utilities board is comprised of W. O. Schneider, chairman, who will serve to July 1, 1970; Robert Lewis, July 1, 1972, and F. J. Cloran, July 1, 1974. The terms are for six years.

During First Months In Office

Nixon Plans Conferences With Leaders Of World

NEW YORK (AP) — President-elect Nixon plans a swift and intensive round of personal diplomacy during the first six months of his administration, to meet with as many world leaders as possible—perhaps including French President Charles de Gaulle.

Nixon disclosed this after his personal diplomacy with Democrats produced the appointment of Charles W. Yost, a career ambassador little known outside diplomatic circles, to be his administration's ambassador to the United Nations.

At the same time, the President-elect said Friday that Sargent Shriver—who had been the prime prospect for the U.N. post—will remain as U.S. ambassador to France.

Nixon sources said the decision against sending Shriver to the United Nations was reached by the President-elect, Shriver and Secretary of State-designate William P. Rogers.

"What we had to consider here was the fact that our relations with France are vitally important at this time and our reports indicate that he is doing and has done a very effective job in France," Nixon said of Shriver.

Nixon, who had pledged to name a Democrat to the U.N. post, spent two hours with Shriver on Dec. 8. He said he decided only days ago that the position should go to Yost.

The President-elect said he decided the job demanded a skilled negotiator experienced at the United Nations, rather than a "political personage."

"I think we have found the best man we could possibly find," Nixon said. "It is not a case of passing this around to a number of people and finally giving it to him. Looking at what the job needs at this time and the kind of man we need, we believe we have found the man for the job."

Yost, 61, and a veteran of 33 years in the Foreign Service, is better known as diplomat than as a Democrat. Nixon said Yost took the U.N. assignment for the duration of the Republican administration.

He stressed that Yost was a campaign adviser to Humphrey on peacekeeping and international organizations, and said this was important for the sake of bipartisanship.

Willshaw To Fill Posts

Terms Will Expire For 6 Serving With City Boards

The terms of six members of unsalaried municipal boards and commissions are scheduled to expire at midnight Dec. 31. The vacancies will be subject to appointments by Mayor George E. Willshaw.

The expiring terms are held by:

Miss Sara Heddleston, Mrs. Stella Birnbaum and Arthur T. Thomas, on the Board of Trustees of the Carnegie Public Library.

Allen Montgomery, on the City Park Commission.

Paul Zehnder, on the Board of Health.

W. Leland Thompson, on the Board of Thompson Park Commissioners.

No terms will run out at the end of the year on two other agencies — the Board of Public Utilities, which administers the water and sewage departments, and the Civil Service Commission.

EXPIRATION dates of the terms on the city boards are staggered so that a few run out at the end of each year. For instance, six ran out at the end of 1965, two expired at the end of 1966 and three ended with the close of 1967.

Holdover members of the Health Board are Dr. J. Keith Rugh, chairman, whose term runs until Dec. 31, 1970; C. Frank Dales, vice chairman, 1969; Donald Mackey, 1971, and Dr. Herschel Rubin, 1972. Terms are for five years. Howard Claypool is clerk, elected by the board.

Continuing as members of the Thompson Park Board are Judge Louis Tobin, 1969; J. Burchfield Cartwright, 1970, and Louis Yanni, 1971.

Remaining as members of the library board are Robert A. Kapp, Lawrence W. Smith and William F. Swan, whose terms run through 1969. The terms are for four years.

THE HOLDOVER members of the City Park Commission are Louis Yanni, 1969, and John Parsons, 1970. The commission was created by a vote of the people late in 1964. It administers most city recreation sites aside from Thompson Park.

The Civil Service Commission, due to remain unchanged in 1969, is comprised of Howard A. Tullis, chairman and Angelo Fiorello, both of whose terms run through 1969, and Thomas Phillips, who will serve through 1973. P. K. Calhoon is clerk, elected by the commission.

The utilities board is comprised of W. O. Schneider, chairman, who will serve to July 1, 1970; Robert Lewis, July 1, 1972, and F. J. Cloran, July 1, 1974. The terms are for six years.

During First Months In Office

Nixon Plans Conferences With Leaders Of World

NEW YORK (AP) — President-elect Nixon plans a swift and intensive round of personal diplomacy during the first six months of his administration, to meet with as many world leaders as possible—perhaps including French President Charles de Gaulle.

Nixon disclosed this after his personal diplomacy with Democrats produced the appointment of Charles W. Yost, a career ambassador little known outside diplomatic circles, to be his administration's ambassador to the United Nations.

At the same time, the President-elect said Friday that Sargent Shriver—who had been the prime prospect for the U.N. post—will remain as U.S. ambassador to France.

Nixon sources said the decision against sending Shriver to the United Nations was reached by the President-elect, Shriver and Secretary of State-designate William P. Rogers.

"What we had to consider here was the fact that our relations with France are vitally important at this time and our reports indicate that he is doing and has done a very effective job in France," Nixon said of Shriver.

Nixon, who had pledged to name a Democrat to the U.N. post, spent two hours with Shriver on Dec. 8. He said he decided only days ago that the position should go to Yost.

The President-elect said he decided the job demanded a skilled negotiator experienced at the United Nations, rather than a "political personage."

"I think we have found the best man we could possibly find," Nixon said. "It is not a case of passing this around to a number of people and finally giving it to him. Looking at what the job needs at this time and the kind of man we need, we believe we have found the man for the job."

Yost, 61, and a veteran of 33 years in the Foreign Service, is better known as diplomat than as a Democrat. Nixon said Yost took the U.N. assignment for the duration of the Republican administration.

He stressed that Yost was a campaign adviser to Humphrey on peacekeeping and international organizations, and said this was important for the sake of bipartisanship.

Potters Lose Lead In 4th, Fall To Aliquippa In Overtime

Stall Tactics Almost Work

By TURK PIERCE
Review Sports Editor

East Liverpool's basketball team played disciplined basketball for 30 minutes and 30 seconds last night, but lost its poise in the final 1½ minutes of regulation play and fell to powerful Aliquippa 49-43 in overtime at Aliquippa.

The Potters led 43-39 and had the ball with 1½ minutes to go, but Rick Steffen missed a driving shot and Jesse Stewart scored to narrow the gap.

Again Steffen missed a driving shot and Aliquippa rebounded. The 'Quips messed up a fast break, but forced a jump. The Potters controlled, but were tied up again. Finally a foul was called on Jerry Christian, with John Thomas going to the line with 25 seconds left. He missed, but got his own rebound and missed a driving shot. In the battle for the rebound, Christian was ruled to have fouled Dwight Kenner. With 12 seconds on the clock the Indians' 6-6 center calmly sunk both ends of a one-and-one free throw to tie the game. The foul was Christian's fifth, and the handwriting was on the wall for East Liverpool.

Bill Montgomery got off a shot from the corner at the end of regulation that missed, but not before a hassle that saw the officials reset the clock, but penalize the Potters.

Following Kenner's tying fouls, Aliquippa coach Frank Janosik inexplicably dropped back his defense. The Potters rolled the ball into play, but the clock started and ran off six seconds before anyone touched the ball. The officials had the clock reset at 12 seconds, but made East Liverpool start from under the Aliquippa basket instead of at mid-court.

The overtime was an anticlimax, Thomas scored on a fast break off the opening tip. The Potters couldn't hit, and George Suder and George Durham connected in the last 30 seconds for the final margin.

Coach Clint McConnell was naturally downhearted after the game, but said "We lost it. It wasn't the bad officiating or anything else, we just took the bad shots at the end."

McConnell had the Potters come out stalling, and while the tactics displeased the fans, they enabled East Liverpool to control the tempo of the game against the taller, speedier 'Quips.

East Liverpool worked for the good shot, usually finding Jerry Christian underneath, and hit 56 per cent the first half to take a 23-18 lead. Until the overtime, Aliquippa led only at 1-0, 3-2, and 30-27 though there were ties at 2, 5, 7, 9, 24, 25, 27 and 31.

Aliquippa hit 54 per cent the first half and 40 per cent for the game. The Potters hit 44 per cent for the game.

With Kenner snaring 18 rebounds, the Quips had a 45-25 lead in that department, Steffen paced the Potters with 8, including six crucial grabs in the fourth period. East Liverpool committed 17 turnovers, six in the fourth period, to 13 for the winners. The Potters stayed in the game only because of the horrendous foul shooting of Aliquippa, which made only 13 of 29.

Kenner led all scorers with 16 points, Stewart had 15 and Thomas 14, as no one else scored for Aliquippa in regulation time. Christian had 15 points and Steffen 10 to pace East Liverpool.

With the score tied at 31 late in the third period, East Liverpool went on a 9-2 spurt to take a 40-33 lead with 4:30 left in the game. But Stewart made a pair of foul shots and Thomas stole the ensuing throw-in and scored to lift the 'Quips right back into the game.

The loss was the first for East Liverpool after three wins. The 'Quips are now 4-1. The Potters travel to Cambridge tonight.

Aliquippa JV Stampedes EL Reserves

The Aliquippa JV team won its fifth straight game last night at Aliquippa, smothering the East Liverpool Reserves 84-49.

The Potters were down 17-15 when a strange ruling on a technical foul hurt their chances. East Liverpool had committed a personal foul when it was brought to the referees' attention that Aliquippa had a player with an illegal number. Aliquippa made its personal, East Liverpool missed the technical, but instead of giving the Potters the ball out of bounds, the officials called for a center jump, and Aliquippa scored four quick points.

Joe March, who paced the losers with 21 points, hit a basket to start the second period, but then Aliquippa reeled off 20 straight to put the game out of reach. The 'Quips' second-string played the entire second half, but still outscored the visitors.

A big reason was the play of Ron Shegog, 6-4, who didn't start but scored 11 points and grabbed 18 rebounds. Larry Alston, another tall reserve, led Aliquippa with 13 points. Aliquippa shot 64 per cent the first half and 55 per cent overall. East Liverpool hit 19 per cent. Aliquippa had a 74-54 rebounding edge, but committed 35 turnovers to 23 by the visitors.

Jim (El) Parson and Randy McVay had 10 points each for East Liverpool and Jim Moore snagged 11 rebounds. East Liverpool is now 2-2.

Leopards Roll 90-47

Burgettstown Pummelled By Rugged Midland Five

By JOHN MUELLER

The Midland Leopards rolled over the Blue Devils of Burgettstown 90-47 at Burgettstown last night.

The story once again was the tough Leopard defense. They forced the Blue Devils to shoot from the outside as well as forcing them to hurry any shot within the easy shot range.

The contest was settled early and to all present it was quite apparent the Blue Devils were in for a most frustrating evening. Union's top offensive threat, Chal Mahoney, had the same type of evening as his team. Averaging a little more than 20 points per game, Chal found the Leopard defense too tough to drive against and settled for a few useless shots through three periods. He managed to tally seven against the reserves in the final stanza.

George Green opened the scoring for the Leopards with a two-pointer at 7:44. Bub Bynum made it 4-0 with an outside shot at 7:07. Union got its first point on a foul by Al Wolfkill at 6:57 and then the Leopards drew the curtain.

The Leopards' starting five started hitting an all operations and it was 13-1 before Union managed is first field goal by Ned Riddile at 4:31. Howard Leak, Frank Johnson, Green, Bynum and Greg Vanlier hit the scoring column with a vengeance and the Leopards went out front 30-3 before Union scored again with 12 seconds remaining in the period. Again it was Riddile with a two-pointer and the first period ended with the Leopards holdinf a commanding 30-5 lead.

Coach Ed Olkowski substituted freely in the second session but it made little difference as the Leopards out-scored the Bluedevils 24-12 to take a 54-17 lead at the intermission. Union managed three field goals in the second period for a first half total of five.

The Leopards were not exactly ragged in the opening two quarters but coach Olkowski was not pleased with their physical condition and insisted that they run in the third period. The Leopards did just that as they ran over, around and through the Blue Devils to batter them into a helpless state and to a lead of 82-19 at the tree quarter mark. The offense was tremendous and the defense was devasting in this period as Midland ran off 24 straight points before the Blue Devils managed their only score of the period, a field goal by Frank Dellaria with 1:02 to play.

Union came to life in the final quarter as the Leopard reserves took over for the final eight minutes. The home team outscored the reserves 28-8, chalking up 16 points on fouls.

The entire Leopard starting five hit double figures, with Vanlier leading all scorers with 19 points. Green garnered 15, Leak had 13, Bynum 12 and Johnson 10.

Riddile paced the Blue Devils with 12 points. Shannon added nine.

The Leopard defense was highlighted by their work under the boards as Green picked off 16 stray shots and Vanlier 12. The Leopards pulled in a total of 59.

The Blue Devils grabbed 26 rebounds. Shannon and Riddile each had eight.

Midland shot 41 per cent, hitting 41 field goals in 100 attempts. The Blue Devils made 12 of 55 for 22 per cent.

The Midland JVs scored an easy 61-36 win in the preliminary.

Tom Vanlier paced the Midland attack with 13 points. Rick Burks and Fred Sallis each added 10.

Phil Brancazio and Dave Barto led the Union scoring with 10 and 8 points respectively.

The Leopards are now 5-1 on the exhibition trail and are idle until they meet Beaver Falls in their Holiday Tournament encounter on Friday in the second game of the opening night's action.

Potters Lose Lead In 4th, Fall To Aliquippa In Overtime

Stall Tactics Almost Work

By TURK PIERCE
Review Sports Editor

East Liverpool's basketball team played disciplined basketball for 30 minutes and 30 seconds last night, but lost its poise in the final 1½ minutes of regulation play and fell to powerful Aliquippa 49-43 in overtime at Aliquippa.

The Potters led 43-39 and had the ball with 1½ minutes to go, but Rick Steffen missed a driving shot and Jesse Stewart scored to narrow the gap.

Again Steffen missed a driving shot and Aliquippa rebounded. The 'Quips messed up a fast break, but forced a jump. The Potters controlled, but were tied up again. Finally a foul was called on Jerry Christian, with John Thomas going to the line with 25 seconds left. He missed, but got his own rebound and missed a driving shot. In the battle for the rebound, Christian was ruled to have fouled Dwight Kenner. With 12 seconds on the clock the Indians' 6-6 center calmly sunk both ends of a one-and-one free throw to tie the game. The foul was Christian's fifth, and the handwriting was on the wall for East Liverpool.

Bill Montgomery got off a shot from the corner at the end of regulation that missed, but not before a hassle that saw the officials reset the clock, but penalize the Potters.

Following Kenner's tying fouls, Aliquippa coach Frank Janosik inexplicably dropped back his defense. The Potters rolled the ball into play, but the clock started and ran off six seconds before anyone touched the ball. The officials had the clock reset at 12 seconds, but made East Liverpool start from under the Aliquippa basket instead of at mid-court.

The overtime was an anticlimax, Thomas scored on a fast break off the opening tip. The Potters couldn't hit, and George Suder and George Durham connected in the last 30 seconds for the final margin.

Coach Clint McConnell was naturally downhearted after the game, but said "We lost it. It wasn't the bad officiating or anything else, we just took the bad shots at the end."

McConnell had the Potters come out stalling, and while the tactics displeased the fans, they enabled East Liverpool to control the tempo of the game against the taller, speedier 'Quips.

East Liverpool worked for the good shot, usually finding Jerry Christian underneath, and hit 56 per cent the first half to take a 23-18 lead. Until the overtime, Aliquippa led only at 1-0, 3-2, and 30-27 though there were ties at 2, 5, 7, 9, 24, 25, 27 and 31.

Aliquippa hit 54 per cent the first half and 40 per cent for the game. The Potters hit 44 per cent for the game.

With Kenner snaring 18 rebounds, the Quips had a 45-25 lead in that department, Steffen paced the Potters with 8, including six crucial grabs in the fourth period. East Liverpool committed 17 turnovers, six in the fourth period, to 13 for the winners. The Potters stayed in the game only because of the horrendous foul shooting of Aliquippa, which made only 13 of 29.

Kenner led all scorers with 16 points, Stewart had 15 and Thomas 14, as no one else scored for Aliquippa in regulation time. Christian had 15 points and Steffen 10 to pace East Liverpool.

With the score tied at 31 late in the third period, East Liverpool went on a 9-2 spurt to take a 40-33 lead with 4:30 left in the game. But Stewart made a pair of foul shots and Thomas stole the ensuing throw-in and scored to lift the 'Quips right back into the game.

The loss was the first for East Liverpool after three wins. The 'Quips are now 4-1. The Potters travel to Cambridge tonight.

Leopards Roll 90-47

Burgettstown Pummelled By Rugged Midland Five

By JOHN MUELLER

The story once again was the tough Leopard defense. They forced the Blue Devils to shoot from the outside as well as forcing them to hurry any shot within the easy shot range.

The contest was settled early and to all present it was quite apparent the Blue Devils were in for a most frustrating evening. Union's top offensive threat, Chal Mahoney, had the same type of evening as his team. Averaging a little more than 20 points per game, Chal found the Leopard defense too tough to drive against and settled for a few useless shots through three periods. He managed to tally seven against the reserves in the final stanza.

George Green opened the scoring for the Leopards with a two-pointer at 7:44. Bub Bynum made it 4-0 with an outside shot at 7:07. Union got its first point on a foul by Al Wolfkill at 6:57 and then the Leopards drew the curtain.

The Leopards' starting five started hitting an all operations and it was 13-1 before Union managed is first field goal by Ned Riddile at 4:31. Howard Leak, Frank Johnson, Green, Bynum and Greg Vanlier hit the scoring column with a vengeance and the Leopards went out front 30-3 before Union scored again with 12 seconds remaining in the period. Again it was Riddile with a two-pointer and the first period ended with the Leopards holdinf a commanding 30-5 lead.

Coach Ed Olkowski substituted freely in the second session but it made little difference as the Leopards out-scored the Bluedevils 24-12 to take a 54-17 lead at the intermission. Union managed three field goals in the second period for a first half total of five.

The Leopards were not exactly ragged in the opening two quarters but coach Olkowski was not pleased with their physical condition and insisted that they run in the third period. The Leopards did just that as they ran over, around and through the Blue Devils to batter them into a helpless state and to a lead of 82-19 at the tree quarter mark. The offense was tremendous and the defense was devasting in this period as Midland ran off 24 straight points before the Blue Devils managed their only score of the period, a field goal by Frank Dellaria with 1:02 to play.

Union came to life in the final quarter as the Leopard reserves took over for the final eight minutes. The home team outscored the reserves 28-8, chalking up 16 points on fouls.

The entire Leopard starting five hit double figures, with Vanlier leading all scorers with 19 points. Green garnered 15, Leak had 13, Bynum 12 and Johnson 10.

Riddile paced the Blue Devils with 12 points. Shannon added nine.

The Leopard defense was highlighted by their work under the boards as Green picked off 16 stray shots and Vanlier 12. The Leopards pulled in a total of 59.

The Blue Devils grabbed 26 rebounds. Shannon and Riddile each had eight.

Midland shot 41 per cent, hitting 41 field goals in 100 attempts. The Blue Devils made 12 of 55 for 22 per cent.

The Midland JVs scored an easy 61-36 win in the preliminary.

Tom Vanlier paced the Midland attack with 13 points. Rick Burks and Fred Sallis each added 10.

Phil Brancazio and Dave Barto led the Union scoring with 10 and 8 points respectively.

The Leopards are now 5-1 on the exhibition trail and are idle until they meet Beaver Falls in their Holiday Tournament encounter on Friday in the second game of the opening night's action.

Aliquippa JV Stampedes EL Reserves

The Potters were down 17-15 when a strange ruling on a technical foul hurt their chances. East Liverpool had committed a personal foul when it was brought to the referees' attention that Aliquippa had a player with an illegal number. Aliquippa made its personal, East Liverpool missed the technical, but instead of giving the Potters the ball out of bounds, the officials called for a center jump, and Aliquippa scored four quick points.

Joe March, who paced the losers with 21 points, hit a basket to start the second period, but then Aliquippa reeled off 20 straight to put the game out of reach. The 'Quips' second-string played the entire second half, but still outscored the visitors.

A big reason was the play of Ron Shegog, 6-4, who didn't start but scored 11 points and grabbed 18 rebounds. Larry Alston, another tall reserve, led Aliquippa with 13 points. Aliquippa shot 64 per cent the first half and 55 per cent overall. East Liverpool hit 19 per cent. Aliquippa had a 74-54 rebounding edge, but committed 35 turnovers to 23 by the visitors.

Jim (El) Parson and Randy McVay had 10 points each for East Liverpool and Jim Moore snagged 11 rebounds. East Liverpool is now 2-2.

Vikings 11-Point Underdog

Chiefs, Colts Rate Edge In Sunday's Title Game

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

It'll be no great surprise if the Kansas City Chiefs try to sock it to Oakland's defending American Football League champions with a ball-control offense in Sunday's Western Division title playoff.

The Minnesota Vikings also figure to play it close to the vest when they tackle high-powered Baltimore for the National Football League's Western Conference crown.

But, whatever the game plans, the oddsmakers like Kansas City's chances a lot more than Minnesota's. The Chiefs are rated 3½-point favorites to knock off the Raiders at Oakland while the Colts are 11-point picks to oust Minnesota at Baltimore.

The Vikings-Colts survivor will meet the winner of today's Eastern Conference showdown between Dallas and Cleveland on Dec. 29 for the NFL title of the Eastern champs' home field. The New York Jets will entertain the Kansas City-Oakland winner the same day for the AFL championship.

Kansas City, which finished the regular AFL season in a 12-2 first-place tie with Oakland for the Western lead, found ball-control a potent ally in the first of two meetings with the Raiders. Len Dawson threw just three passes, but the Chiefs' running backs led the way to a 24–10 victory. Oakland's explosive offense rebounded to smash the Chiefs 38-21 in the re-match.

But the Raiders, who have scored more points, 453, and averaged more yards per-game, 406.9, than any other AFL club, wound up their regular schedule with three close-shave victories while Kansas City breezed past its last five opponents.

Quarterback Daryle Lamonica will be directing the Raiders' attack against a formidable Kansas City defensive unit that yielded an AFL low of 170 points and led the league with 37 pass interceptions.

Dawson also led the AFL passing standings, although Lamonica had 75 more completions and hit for approximately 1,100 more aerial yards than the Chiefs' signal-caller.

The Vikings' best-laid ball control plans went awry in their only regular season collision with Baltimore. The Colts, on the way to a 13-1 finish, won 21-9, limiting Minnesota to three Fred Cox field goals. They outgained the Vikings 413-229, with a 70-51 edge in offensive plays.

But Colts' pilot Don Shula expects plenty of trouble from the Vikings, 8-6, who beat out Chicago in the Central race for their first division title ever. "The Vikings seldom show you anything fancy," he said Friday. "They like to play ball-control with just a lot of hard-hitting, sound football."

Minnesota quarterback Joe Kapp has thrown 10 touchdown passes—16 fewer than the Colts' Earl Morrall, the league leader. Vikings Coach Bug Grant admits his club can't match the Coastal kings' knack for scoring "with a haymaker—the long pass, the big play."

DeBusschere Scores 21 Against Ex-Teammates

By The Associated Press

You can't blame the Detroit Pistons for wishing they had waited an extra day or so before dealing off Dave DeBusschere to the New York Knicks.

The man who had been a basketball fixture in the Motor City for almost a decade played for a National Basketball Association team other than the Pistons for the first time Friday night and responded with 21 points in firing the Knicks to a 135-87 humiliation of his old mates.

Just a little more than 24 hours earlier, the Knicks had obtained DeBusschere in exchange for Walt Bellamy and guard Howard Komives — and, at first glance, it appears the New Yorkers got the better of the deal.

The 6-11 Bellamy played only sporadically and fouled out late in the game, although he was Detroit's top shooter with 18 points. Komives netted only three free throws.

Meanwhile, rampaging Baltimore won its seventh straight with a 125-102 rout of Chicago in the opener of a doubleheader at Milwaukee. But the Bullets again failed to make improvements on their one-game lead in the Eastern Divison when surging Philadelphia's runnerups turned back San Diego 116-109 for the 76er's 20th victory in 23 games.

Milwaukee checked Seattle 100-92 and Los Angeles' Western Division leaders topped San Francisco 133-101 in the night's other activities.

Minneapolis rode a 35-point performance by Connie Hawkins to a 123-103 victory over Houston in the only American Basketball Association game.

Baltimore's Ken Loughery whipped in six straight points in the first quarter to wipe out a two-point deficit and the Bullets were never in trouble after that.

Earl Monroe led he way with 24 points, while Bob Boozer, Clem Haskins, Jerry Sloan and Jim Washington all had 14 for the Bulls.

Philadelphia raced to a 20-point lead midway through the third quarter before San Diego revived to move within two points several times in the final period. However, Hal Greer, who finished with 30, chocked off the Rockets' threat with clutch baskets in the closing minutes.

Elgin Baylor, who missed two games with a groin muscle pull, returned with 25 points to guide the Lakers past San Francisco.

Los Angeles held a 10-point halftime lead, then used a pair of 14-4 scoring bursts to put it out of doubt by early in the final quarter.

Flynn Robinson scored 28 points and Jon McGlocklin 25 as Milwaukee turned back Seattle.

Despite Hawkins' production, Minnesota needed some second-half heroics by Frank Card to stop lowly Houston and increase its ABA Eastern Division lead to 5½ games over idle Kentucky.

Card scored 14 of his 20 points in the second half to help rescue the Pipers from a 58-49 deficit at intermission.

Alcindor Shows No Sign Of Injury In UCLA Win

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Lew Alcindor's injured foot turned out to be a pain in the neck for the Minnesota Gophers.

The agile 7-foot-2 All-American for the top-ranked UCLA Bruins showed no visible sign of being bothered by a pulled tendon in his left arch as he led the National Collegiate basketball champions to a devastating 90-51 victory over Minnesota Friday night.

Mr. A played about 28 minutes, threw in 25 points, grabbed 20 rebounds and set a UCLA career scoring record of 1,695 points. It was UCLA's 20th straight victory, four this season, and the Bruins' 67th triumph in their last 68 games.

UCLA's return to action after a layoff of nearly two weeks highlighted the collegiate activity in which Davidson, Kentucky, New Mexico, Cincinnati and Santa Clara, the other teams in the Associated Press Top Ten to see action, all won.

Davidson, No. 3, scored at home over stubborn South Carolina 62-55 as Jerry Kroll scored 15 of his 23 points in the closing three minutes.

Kentucky, No. 4, routed Michigan 112-104 paced by Dan Issel's 34 points in the first round of the UK Invitational. Army edged Bradley 54-52 in the UKIT other game.

New Mexico, No. 5, whipped San Francisco 82-71 in the first game of the Lobo Invitational at Albuqerque, although playing without star Greg Howard. Bob King, New Mexico coach, dropped Howard from the team earlier Friday for disciplinary reasons. Temple downed Fordham 72-60 in the other Lobo first-round contest.

Rick Roberson's 21 points led sixth-ranked Cincinnati over Stanford on the road 60-49, while Santa Clara, No. 10, made it six in a row by downing North Texas State 46-31 at San Jose, Calif.

Kansas, No. 11, also won on the road, beating Utah State 67-61 at Logan. Rick Mount's 35 points paced 12th-ranked Purdue over 15th-ranked California 98-81 in the Sun Devil Classic at Phoenix. Arizona State whipped Nebraska 83-76 in the other game at Phoenix.

Kansas State downed North Carolina State 66-54 and Vanderbilt took Rice 85-77 in the Vanderbilt Classic, while Texas-El Paso beat Georgia Tech 75-71 and Chicago Loyola tripped Oklahoma City 93-82 in the Sun Carnival at El Paso.

Maryland beat Marshall 89-80 and Miami, Fla., whipped Yale 77-71 in the Marshall Invitational. Baylor took Hawaii 78-69 and Soutwestern Louisiana upended Mississippi State 81-70 in the Bayou Classic.

Club Heads Fail To Name New Leader

CHICAGO (AP) — The 24 major league baseball club heads failed to elect a new commissioner today and gave up and went home after a marathon tug-of-war that lasted almost 15 hours and went through 19 unsuccessful ballots.

The meeting broke up after John McHale, former executive assistant in the commissioner's office, removed his name from consideration while apparently on the verge of being elected. McHale said he preferred to devote himself to his new job as president of the expansion Montreal Expos.

Francis L. Dale, president of the Cincinnati Reds, acted as spokesman for the club heads. He said they wouldn't meet again for 30-40 days.

Dale said McHale received more than the necessary nine American League votes but withdrew as a candidate before the National League could ballot. Dale indicated that McHale could have gotten the nine necessary National League votes, as well.

"If he had been able to be a candidate, the National League would have supported him," said Dale, a Cincinnati publishing executive who is one of the Young Turks, a group of owners who ousted Gen. William D. Eckert as commissioner two weeks ago and announced plans to "restructure" baseball.

Vikings 11-Point Underdog

Chiefs, Colts Rate Edge In Sunday's Title Game

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

It'll be no great surprise if the Kansas City Chiefs try to sock it to Oakland's defending American Football League champions with a ball-control offense in Sunday's Western Division title playoff.

The Minnesota Vikings also figure to play it close to the vest when they tackle high-powered Baltimore for the National Football League's Western Conference crown.

But, whatever the game plans, the oddsmakers like Kansas City's chances a lot more than Minnesota's. The Chiefs are rated 3½-point favorites to knock off the Raiders at Oakland while the Colts are 11-point picks to oust Minnesota at Baltimore.

The Vikings-Colts survivor will meet the winner of today's Eastern Conference showdown between Dallas and Cleveland on Dec. 29 for the NFL title of the Eastern champs' home field. The New York Jets will entertain the Kansas City-Oakland winner the same day for the AFL championship.

Kansas City, which finished the regular AFL season in a 12-2 first-place tie with Oakland for the Western lead, found ball-control a potent ally in the first of two meetings with the Raiders. Len Dawson threw just three passes, but the Chiefs' running backs led the way to a 24–10 victory. Oakland's explosive offense rebounded to smash the Chiefs 38-21 in the re-match.

But the Raiders, who have scored more points, 453, and averaged more yards per-game, 406.9, than any other AFL club, wound up their regular schedule with three close-shave victories while Kansas City breezed past its last five opponents.

Quarterback Daryle Lamonica will be directing the Raiders' attack against a formidable Kansas City defensive unit that yielded an AFL low of 170 points and led the league with 37 pass interceptions.

Dawson also led the AFL passing standings, although Lamonica had 75 more completions and hit for approximately 1,100 more aerial yards than the Chiefs' signal-caller.

The Vikings' best-laid ball control plans went awry in their only regular season collision with Baltimore. The Colts, on the way to a 13-1 finish, won 21-9, limiting Minnesota to three Fred Cox field goals. They outgained the Vikings 413-229, with a 70-51 edge in offensive plays.

But Colts' pilot Don Shula expects plenty of trouble from the Vikings, 8-6, who beat out Chicago in the Central race for their first division title ever. "The Vikings seldom show you anything fancy," he said Friday. "They like to play ball-control with just a lot of hard-hitting, sound football."

Minnesota quarterback Joe Kapp has thrown 10 touchdown passes—16 fewer than the Colts' Earl Morrall, the league leader. Vikings Coach Bug Grant admits his club can't match the Coastal kings' knack for scoring "with a haymaker—the long pass, the big play."

DeBusschere Scores 21 Against Ex-Teammates

By The Associated Press

You can't blame the Detroit Pistons for wishing they had waited an extra day or so before dealing off Dave DeBusschere to the New York Knicks.

The man who had been a basketball fixture in the Motor City for almost a decade played for a National Basketball Association team other than the Pistons for the first time Friday night and responded with 21 points in firing the Knicks to a 135-87 humiliation of his old mates.

Just a little more than 24 hours earlier, the Knicks had obtained DeBusschere in exchange for Walt Bellamy and guard Howard Komives — and, at first glance, it appears the New Yorkers got the better of the deal.

The 6-11 Bellamy played only sporadically and fouled out late in the game, although he was Detroit's top shooter with 18 points. Komives netted only three free throws.

Meanwhile, rampaging Baltimore won its seventh straight with a 125-102 rout of Chicago in the opener of a doubleheader at Milwaukee. But the Bullets again failed to make improvements on their one-game lead in the Eastern Divison when surging Philadelphia's runnerups turned back San Diego 116-109 for the 76er's 20th victory in 23 games.

Milwaukee checked Seattle 100-92 and Los Angeles' Western Division leaders topped San Francisco 133-101 in the night's other activities.

Minneapols rode a 35-point performance by Connie Hawkins to a 123-103 victory over Houston in the only American Basketball Association game.

Baltimore's Ken Loughery whipped in six straight points in the first quarter to wipe out a two-point deficit and the Bullets were never in trouble after that.

Earl Monroe led he way with 24 points, while Bob Boozer, Clem Haskins, Jerry Sloan and Jim Washington all had 14 for the Bulls.

Philadelphia raced to a 20-point lead midway through the third quarter before San Diego revived to move within two points several times in the final period. However, Hal Greer, who finished with 30, chocked off the Rockets' threat with clutch baskets in the closing minutes.

Elgin Baylor, who missed two games with a groin muscle pull, returned with 25 points to guide the Lakers past San Francisco.

Los Angeles held a 10-point halftime lead, then used a pair of 14-4 scoring bursts to put it out of doubt by early in the final quarter.

Flynn Robinson scored 28 points and Jon McGlocklin 25 as Milwaukee turned back Seattle.

Despite Hawkins' production, Minnesota needed some second-half heroics by Frank Card to stop lowly Houston and increase its ABA Eastern Division lead to 5½ games over idle Kentucky.

Card scored 14 of his 20 points in the second half to help rescue the Pipers from a 58-49 deficit at intermission.

Alcindor Shows No Sign Of Injury In UCLA Win

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Lew Alcindor's injured foot turned out to be a pain in the neck for the Minnesota Gophers.

The agile 7-foot-2 All-American for the top-ranked UCLA Bruins showed no visible sign of being bothered by a pulled tendon in his left arch as he led the National Collegiate basketball champions to a devastating 90-51 victory over Minnesota Friday night.

Mr. A played about 28 minutes, threw in 25 points, grabbed 20 rebounds and set a UCLA career scoring record of 1,695 points. It was UCLA's 20th straight victory, four this season, and the Bruins' 67th triumph in their last 68 games.

UCLA's return to action after a layoff of nearly two weeks highlighted the collegiate activity in which Davidson, Kentucky, New Mexico, Cincinnati and Santa Clara, the other teams in the Associated Press Top Ten to see action, all won.

Davidson, No. 3, scored at home over stubborn South Carolina 62-55 as Jerry Kroll scored 15 of his 23 points in the closing three minutes.

Kentucky, No. 4, routed Michigan 112-104 paced by Dan Issel's 34 points in the first round of the UK Invitational. Army edged Bradley 54-52 in the UKIT other game.

New Mexico, No. 5, whipped San Francisco 82-71 in the first game of the Lobo Invitational at Albuqerque, although playing without star Greg Howard. Bob King, New Mexico coach, dropped Howard from the team earlier Friday for disciplinary reasons. Temple downed Fordham 72-60 in the other Lobo first-round contest.

Rick Roberson's 21 points led sixth-ranked Cincinnati over Stanford on the road 60-49, while Santa Clara, No. 10, made it six in a row by downing North Texas State 46-31 at San Jose, Calif.

Kansas, No. 11, also won on the road, beating Utah State 67-61 at Logan. Rick Mount's 35 points paced 12th-ranked Purdue over 15th-ranked California 98-81 in the Sun Devil Classic at Phoenix. Arizona State whipped Nebraska 83-76 in the other game at Phoenix.

Kansas State downed North Carolina State 66-54 and Vanderbilt took Rice 85-77 in the Vanderbilt Classic, while Texas-El Paso beat Georgia Tech 75-71 and Chicago Loyola tripped Oklahoma City 93-82 in the Sun Carnival at El Paso.

Maryland beat Marshall 89-80 and Miami, Fla., whipped Yale 77-71 in the Marshall Invitational. Baylor took Hawaii 78-69 and Soutwestern Louisiana upended Mississippi State 81-70 in the Bayou Classic.

Club Heads Fail To Name New Leader

CHICAGO (AP) — The 24 major league baseball club heads failed to elect a new commissioner today and gave up and went home after a marathon tug-of-war that lasted almost 15 hours and went through 19 unsuccessful ballots.

The meeting broke up after John McHale, former executive assistant in the commissioner's office, removed his name from consideration while apparently on the verge of being elected. McHale said he preferred to devote himself to his new job as president of the expansion Montreal Expos.

Francis L. Dale, president of the Cincinnati Reds, acted as spokesman for the club heads. He said they wouldn't meet again for 30-40 days.

Dale said McHale received more than the necessary nine American League votes but withdrew as a candidate before the National League could ballot. Dale indicated that McHale could have gotten the nine necessary National League votes, as well.

"If he had been able to be a candidate, the National League would have supported him," said Dale, a Cincinnati publishing executive who is one of the Young Turks, a group of owners who ousted Gen. William D. Eckert as commissioner two weeks ago and announced plans to "restructure" baseball.

HINTS FROM HELOISE

Dough In The Dishwasher

DEAR HELOISE: When making yeast rolls and bread, I have always had a problem of where to place the dough so that it would rise properly in a short time.

Heloise

I now mix my dough at the same time that I run my dishwasher.

After the dishes have finished drying and I have removed them, the remaining heat in the dishwasher seems just right for the proper rising of the dough.

So I just pop the covered bowl of dough into the still-warm dishwasher and close the door.

Of course, the time required for the dough to rise varies with the amount of the dought. I peek in the door every now and then until I'm sure it has completed its rising action.

Well, I'm a monkey's uncle if it doesn't work. Who would have THUNK it?

HELOISE.

DEAR HELOISE: Use an old bookshelf for your child's toys instead of piling them in a box.

The display will appeal to him more than reummaging around in the box, and you won't have the entire contents dumped on the floor while he hunts for one toy.

At the same time the child learns to be neat.

CLARE WILSON.

DEAR HELOISE: My sister-in-law wraps her frozen food in blankets while defrosting her freezer.

Since my blankets were all in use, I grabbed a sleeping bag. Unzipped it, laid it across the top of my washer-dryer, placed all the contents of the freezer inside several thicknesses of paper and zipped it up!

Worked fabulously.

ALICE.

Letter Of Thought

DEAR HELOISE: We have four preschoolers and are expecting number five. I plan to nurse this baby as I did the others.

Feeding time can often be hard on the other little ones because mommy is all nestled up to baby and they feel left out.

I solve this by making nursing time, story time.

They all gather around and they tell me stories or vice versa. Fable stories are favorites.

This way the little ones feel you're just as interested in them as you are with Baby.

It's a beautiful time to count your blessings and tears of joy sometimes flow freely.

TERRY STADUM.

DEAR HELOISE: Here's a pretty holiday decoration you can make for your outdoor post lantern that can be used over and over again.

From red adhesive-backed plastic, cut the letters N O E L. Then stick them on the glass sides. Very attractive.

When the holidays are over, remove them carefully and press on wax paper to keep for next year.

I have used mine for three years in a row and they're as good as new.

"THE WOODEN NUTMEG."

DEAR HELOISE: I can't see using my cutting board for all things because of the cleaning problem.

I bought a flat china cake plate (inexpensive) and it makes the best all-around cutting board.

It's always handy and so easy to wash after each one.

A READER.

DEAR HELOISE: The lacy snowflakes children enjoy cutting out and placing on windows during the holidays are especially pretty when cut from folded paper doilies.

CAROL OLSON.

DEAR FOLKS: In case of a sudden cold spell and you have some small plants outside that you don't want the cold to nip in the bud . . .

Turn a grocery sack upside down over them and either tie it snugly at the bottom or take sticks and push them around the sides of the sack into the ground. This will help protect it.

HELOISE.

DEAR HELOISE: If the holes in your kitchen sink drain are too large, remove the top of a scouring can. Twist a small loop of wire through two of the holes for easy handling.

Saxbe Spent $769,614 In Senate Win

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Republican Wiliam B. Saxbe spent more than three-quarters of a million dollars in winning the U.S. Senate race last month, according to expense statements filed Friday.

Saxbe's campaign committees reported expenses totaled $769,614, including $113,318 in debts not yet paid.

The total is nearly double the expenses reported in behalf of Saxbe's opponent, Democrat John J. Gilligan. Gilligan's campaign committee reported spending $393,016, not including outstanding debts of $35,346.

Deadline for filing expense statements with Secretary of State Ted W. Brown was 4 p.m. Friday. Only four reports had not yet been filed by that time.

Statements had not been received from these unsuccessful congressional candidates: Paul Tipps, Centerville; Kenneth L. Kirby, Portsmouth; Marie Baker, Fostoria, and Lloyd D. Miller, Middletown.

Brown's office said that if their statements were mailed before the deadline and are received next week they will be accepted.

Other campaign expense statements filed Friday included:

Rep. Charles A. Mosher, Republican re-elected in 13th District, receipts and expenditures of $24,727.

Rep. William E. Minshall, Republican re-elected in 23rd District, contributions of $68,194 and expenditures of $68,156.

Charles P. Lucas, Republican defeated in 21st District, contributions of $15,221 and expenditures of $14,156.

To Marry David Eisenhower

Rehearsal Held By Julie For Wedding On Sunday

Today she marches down the aisle in a rehearsal of the wedding in the Fifth Avenue church where workmen Friday were putting the finishing touches on the decorations of Christmas greenery and red and white poinsettas.

After the rehearsal, the bride-to-be attends a dinner given by the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Eisenhower, at a Manhattan restaurant.

Friday, Julie was honored—and advised—at a luncheon given by Susan Harvin of Houston, Tex., a Smith College classmate and bridesmaid.

Julie was given a jar of pennies for "common sense," a can of meat tenderizer for "tenderness" and a red garter trimmed with black lace for "frivolity and foolishness."

Instructions included with the gifts directed: "Mix all these ingredients with a tremendous amount of love and serve before wings sprout."

What Julie will wear at the wedding is still a secret, although it has been reported that Priscilla of Boston—who designed the gown Luci Johnson wore when she married Patrick Nugent in August 1966—will do the dress.

Although there will be several Eisenhowers at the wedding—David's three sisters are bridesmaids—two of the most famous will be missing.

The former president, in Walter Reed Army Hospital after a series of heart attacks, will watch the ceremony on a special closed circuit television broadcast. Mrs. Eisenhower, sick with the flu, also will remain in the hospital.

The guest list includes few political or public figures. All of Nixon's Cabinet choices have been invited, however.

The lack of "big names" is in keeping with the young couple's desire to keep the wedding a private, rather than a state, occasion.

No newsmen will be allowed at the church or at the Plaza Hotel reception.

7 Cashed In Dayton

Alert Sounded On Phony Ohio Jobless Pay Checks

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — State Treasurer John D. Herbert alerted banks and businesses Friday to be on the lookout for counterfeit Ohio unemployment compensation checks.

Herbert said seven phony checks were cashed in Dayton Thursday. He described them as "very well done counterfeiting—no home photography job."

It is the first known case of state-issued checks being counterfeited, Herbert said, and it could run into thousands of dollars if the bogus checks find their way into other communities during the Christmas season rush.

The phony checks were in the amounts of either $66 or $132. The amounts are not uncommon according to officials of the Unemployment Compensation Division because the weekly maximum payment is $66, but recipients receive checks for more than one week's coverage.

The counterfeit checks were uncovered Friday morning when they failed to be cleared by a computer.

Herbert said the Ohio Highway Patrol and investigators of the Bureau of Employment Services were attempting to track down the origin of the checks.

The bogus checks were light blue in color, similar to the genuine draft. But the counterfeits differ from the real ones in wording, size, computer marks and quality of paper used.

Authorities said the phony checks read in large letters across the top, "State of Ohio" with the words "Bureau of Unemployment Compensation" underneath.

The genuine checks read, "Ohio Bureau of Employment Services" across the top with "Unemployment Compensation Division" on the next line.

Herbert said the state will lose no money because of the counterfeit checks. The place that cashes them must absorb the loss.

Firestone Rubber Hits Record High In Sales

AKRON — The Firestone Tire and Rubber Co. announced net sales for the year ended Oct. 31 went over the $2 billion level for the first time. Net income also reached a record high, with earnings 6 per cent of sales.

The company reached the $2 billion sales level just 15 years after achieving its first $1 billion sales year. Sales for the year were $2,131,443,965, compared with $1,875,376,329 for the previous year, an increase of 13.7 per cent.

Earnings for the year amounted to $127,034,657, compared with $102,349,310 a year ago, an increase of 24.1 per cent.

Net income for 1968 was equal to $4.32 per share of common stock, compared with $3.53 in 1967.

Urged As Legislator

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — House Republicans from Franklin County recommended Friday that Jacob A. Shawan be named to succeed Robert G. Jones as representative from the 62nd District. Jones died earlier this month of injuries received in an auto accident.

Legal Landmark Seen In Union's Victory In Court

The International Brotherhood of Operative Potters today termed as a legal landmark a decision handed down by a federal court in Indiana which held that federal law on dues checkoff of union members supersedes state law on the same subject.

The ruling was handed down in the Federal Court for the Southern District of Indiana in a case initiated by the IBOP against the Tell City Chair Co., with which the IBOP has a contract.

Indiana has a state law which permits an employe to cancel dues checkoff at any time while federal law says a checkoff may not be cancelled within a period of a year, the IBOP explained.

The federal court held that the provisions in the contract with the company must take precedence over the state law. The IBOP said the ruling may help set a precedent for other federal courts faced with similar cases.

Dinner And Fete Set For Sunday By Legion Post

Members are to bring gifts for their children to be distributed by Santa along with treats.

Meat and rolls will be furnished by the post, with the Auxiliary in charge of the dinner.

Tickets now may be purchased for the New Year's Eve party, Comdr. Joseph Barile said.

Joseph Krizan was elected post service officer, Walter Allison historian and Thomas Cooper a member of the executive committee.

William Cooper, membership chairman, reported the membership still is lagging and urged members to pay their 1969 dues.

Yuletide Party Held For Copeland Oaks

SEBRING — Prizes for the best decorated doors, program of Christmas music by a double quartet from Sebring McKinley High School under the direction of Mr. Bruce Ferguson and a review of "The Little Mixer" by Mrs. Walter Handwork of Alliance comprised the program for the Copeland Oaks residents' Christmas party here Friday night.

Copeland Oaks, known as The Cope United Methodist Home, is the newest retirement home for the more mature and senior citizens in the North - East Ohio Confrence of the United Methodist Church. It is located at 800 South 15th St.

The Homburg hat was popularized by Edward, Prince of Wales (later King Edward VII of England), while he was visiting Bad Homburg, a fashionable spa in Germany in the 1890s.

HINTS FROM HELOISE

Dough In The Dishwasher

DEAR HELOISE: When making yeast rolls and bread, I have always had a problem of where to place the dough so that it would rise properly in a short time.

Heloise

I now mix my dough at the same time that I run my dishwasher.

After the dishes have finished drying and I have removed them, the remaining heat in the dishwasher seems just right for the proper rising of the dough.

So I just pop the covered bowl of dough into the still-warm dishwasher and close the door.

Of course, the time required for the dough to rise varies with the amount of the dought. I peek in the door every now and then until I'm sure it has completed its rising action.

Well, I'm a monkey's uncle if it doesn't work. Who would have THUNK it?

HELOISE.

DEAR HELOISE: Use an old bookshelf for your child's toys instead of piling them in a box.

The display will appeal to him more than reummaging around in the box, and you won't have the entire contents dumped on the floor while he hunts for one toy.

At the same time the child learns to be neat.

CLARE WILSON.

DEAR HELOISE: My sister-in-law wraps her frozen food in blankets while defrosting her freezer.

Since my blankets were all in use, I grabbed a sleeping bag. Unzipped it, laid it across the top of my washer-dryer, placed all the contents of the freezer inside several thicknesses of paper and zipped it up!

Worked fabulously.

ALICE.

Letter Of Thought

DEAR HELOISE: We have four preschoolers and are expecting number five. I plan to nurse this baby as I did the others.

Feeding time can often be hard on the other little ones because mommy is all nestled up to baby and they feel left out.

I solve this by making nursing time, story time.

They all gather around and they tell me stories or vice versa. Fable stories are favorites.

This way the little ones feel you're just as interested in them as you are with Baby.

It's a beautiful time to count your blessings and tears of joy sometimes flow freely.

TERRY STADUM.

DEAR HELOISE: Here's a pretty holiday decoration you can make for your outdoor post lantern that can be used over and over again.

From red adhesive-backed plastic, cut the letters N O E L. Then stick them on the glass sides. Very attractive.

When the holidays are over, remove them carefully and press on wax paper to keep for next year.

I have used mine for three years in a row and they're as good as new.

"THE WOODEN NUTMEG."

DEAR HELOISE: I can't see using my cutting board for all things because of the cleaning problem.

I bought a flat china cake plate (inexpensive) and it makes the best all-around cutting board.

It's always handy and so easy to wash after each one.

A READER.

DEAR HELOISE: The lacy snowflakes children enjoy cutting out and placing on windows during the holidays are especially pretty when cut from folded paper doilies.

CAROL OLSON.

DEAR FOLKS: In case of a sudden cold spell and you have some small plants outside that you don't want the cold to nip in the bud . . .

Turn a grocery sack upside down over them and either tie it snugly at the bottom or take sticks and push them around the sides of the sack into the ground. This will help protect it.

HELOISE.

DEAR HELOISE: If the holes in your kitchen sink drain are too large, remove the top of a scouring can. Twist a small loop of wire through two of the holes for easy handling.

The top fits right in most drains and keeps small things from going down the large holes.

To Marry David Eisenhower

Rehearsal Held By Julie For Wedding On Sunday

Today she marches down the aisle in a rehearsal of the wedding in the Fifth Avenue church where workmen Friday were putting the finishing touches on the decorations of Christmas greenery and red and white poinsettas.

After the rehearsal, the bride-to-be attends a dinner given by the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Eisenhower, at a Manhattan restaurant.

Friday, Julie was honored—and advised—at a luncheon given by Susan Harvin of Houston, Tex., a Smith College classmate and bridesmaid.

Julie was given a jar of pennies for "common sense," a can of meat tenderizer for "tenderness" and a red garter trimmed with black lace for "frivolity and foolishness."

Instructions included with the gifts directed: "Mix all these ingredients with a tremendous amount of love and serve before wings sprout."

What Julie will wear at the wedding is still a secret, although it has been reported that Priscilla of Boston—who designed the gown Luci Johnson wore when she married Patrick Nugent in August 1966—will do the dress.

Although there will be several Eisenhowers at the wedding—David's three sisters are bridesmaids—two of the most famous will be missing.

The former president, in Walter Reed Army Hospital after a series of heart attacks, will watch the ceremony on a special closed circuit television broadcast. Mrs. Eisenhower, sick with the flu, also will remain in the hospital.

The guest list includes few political or public figures. All of Nixon's Cabinet choices have been invited, however.

The lack of "big names" is in keeping with the young couple's desire to keep the wedding a private, rather than a state, occasion.

No newsmen will be allowed at the church or at the Plaza Hotel reception.

7 Cashed In Dayton

Alert Sounded On Phony Ohio Jobless Pay Checks

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — State Treasurer John D. Herbert alerted banks and businesses Friday to be on the lookout for counterfeit Ohio unemployment compensation checks.

Herbert said seven phony checks were cashed in Dayton Thursday. He described them as "very well done counterfeiting—no home photography job."

It is the first known case of state-issued checks being counterfeited, Herbert said, and it could run into thousands of dollars if the bogus checks find their way into other communities during the Christmas season rush.

The phony checks were in the amounts of either $66 or $132. The amounts are not uncommon according to officials of the Unemployment Compensation Division because the weekly maximum payment is $66, but recipients receive checks for more than one week's coverage.

The counterfeit checks were uncovered Friday morning when they failed to be cleared by a computer.

Herbert said the Ohio Highway Patrol and investigators of the Bureau of Employment Services were attempting to track down the origin of the checks.

The bogus checks were light blue in color, similar to the genuine draft. But the counterfeits differ from the real ones in wording, size, computer marks and quality of paper used.

Authorities said the phony checks read in large letters across the top, "State of Ohio" with the words "Bureau of Unemployment Compensation" underneath.

The genuine checks read, "Ohio Bureau of Employment Services" across the top with "Unemployment Compensation Division" on the next line.

Herbert said the state will lose no money because of the counterfeit checks. The place that cashes them must absorb the loss.

Firestone Rubber Hits Record High In Sales

AKRON — The Firestone Tire and Rubber Co. announced net sales for the year ended Oct. 31 went over the $2 billion level for the first time. Net income also reached a record high, with earnings 6 per cent of sales.

The company reached the $2 billion sales level just 15 years after achieving its first $1 billion sales year. Sales for the year were $2,131,443,965, compared with $1,875,376,329 for the previous year, an increase of 13.7 per cent.

Earnings for the year amounted to $127,034,657, compared with $102,349,310 a year ago, an increase of 24.1 per cent.

Net income for 1968 was equal to $4.32 per share of common stock, compared with $3.53 in 1967.

Urged As Legislator

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — House Republicans from Franklin County recommended Friday that Jacob A. Shawan be named to succeed Robert G. Jones as representative from the 62nd District. Jones died earlier this month of injuries received in an auto accident.

Legal Landmark Seen In Union's Victory In Court

The International Brotherhood of Operative Potters today termed as a legal landmark a decision handed down by a federal court in Indiana which held that federal law on dues checkoff of union members supersedes state law on the same subject.

The ruling was handed down in the Federal Court for the Southern District of Indiana in a case initiated by the IBOP against the Tell City Chair Co., with which the IBOP has a contract.

Indiana has a state law which permits an employe to cancel dues checkoff at any time while federal law says a checkoff may not be cancelled within a period of a year, the IBOP explained.

The federal court held that the provisions in the contract with the company must take precedence over the state law. The IBOP said the ruling may help set a precedent for other federal courts faced with similar cases.

Saxbe Spent $769,614 In Senate Win

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Republican Wiliam B. Saxbe spent more than three-quarters of a million dollars in winning the U.S. Senate race last month, according to expense statements filed Friday.

Saxbe's campaign committees reported expenses totaled $769,614, including $113,318 in debts not yet paid.

The total is nearly double the expenses reported in behalf of Saxbe's opponent, Democrat John J. Gilligan. Gilligan's campaign committee reported spending $393,016, not including outstanding debts of $35,346.

Deadline for filing expense statements with Secretary of State Ted W. Brown was 4 p.m. Friday. Only four reports had not yet been filed by that time.

Statements had not been received from these unsuccessful congressional candidates: Paul Tipps, Centerville; Kenneth L. Kirby, Portsmouth; Marie Baker, Fostoria, and Lloyd D. Miller, Middletown.

Brown's office said that if their statements were mailed before the deadline and are received next week they will be accepted.

Other campaign expense statements filed Friday included:

Rep. Charles A. Mosher, Republican re-elected in 13th District, receipts and expenditures of $24,727.

Rep. William E. Minshall, Republican re-elected in 23rd District, contributions of $68,194 and expenditures of $68,156.

Junior Editors Quiz on DISCOVERY OF AMERICA

QUESTION: Can we be certain that America was discovered by Columbus and not by the Vikings?

* * * *

ANSWER: This question seems to suggest a race between Leif Ericson and Christopher Columbus — impossible because the two explorers lived at different times. The idea was so quaint that our artist illustrated it. Actually, neither man realized he had discovered a huge continent called America. This name was not given to it until later, after the discoveries of Amerigo Vespucci. We have heard about Lief Ericson's journey about 1000 A.D. because the old Icelandic sagas tell his story. A few years ago the remains of a Viking settlement were found in Newfoundland. Others may have visited America before Leif, but he was certainly one of the very first explorers to land on this continent. Columbus was hoping to find a sea route to the riches of the East and thought he could reach the East Indies by sailing directly west from Europe. When, in 1492, he landed on what is now the island of San Salvador in the West Indies, he thought these were the East Indies.

(Debbie Sweet of LaBelle, Mo., wins a prize for this question. You can win $10 cash plus AP's handsome World Yearbook if your question, mailed on a postcard to Junior Editors in care of this newspaper, is selected for a prize.)

Wellsville Serviceman Honored Posthumously

A Bronze Star Medal was awarded posthumously this month to a Wellsville serviceman who lost his life during action in Vietnam in September.

The medal and other military honors were presented by the Army to Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. David of 804 Main St., whose son Sgt. Charles E. David Jr. was killed near Saigon.

Also awarded posthumously were the Purple Heart and Good Conduct Medal. Other awards earned by the Wellsville serviceman include the National Defense Service Medal, the Vietnam Service Medal, the Vietnam Campaign Ribbon, the combat infantryman badge, expert badge for rifle and automatic rifle and marksman badge for pistol.

The Bronze Star citation, issued at the direction of President Johnson, points out Sg. David's "outstandingly meritorious service in connection with military operations" in Vietnam from June 5 to Sept. 3.

During that period, it continues, "he consistently manifested exemplary professionalism and initiative in obtaining outstanding results. . . Energetically applying his sound judgment and extensive knowledge, he has contributed materially to the successful accomplishment of the United States mission in the Republic of Vietnam. His loyalty, diligence and devotion to duty were in keeping with the highest tradition of the military service and reflect great credit upon himself and the United States Army."

Sgt. David was born Oct. 25, 1948, in Wellsville and attended Wellsville High School. He was one of six children, having three brothers and two sisters.

Cook allegedly shot Parson in the chest with a .22-caliber revolver as an upshot of an argument on E. 4th St. at Washington St. Cook's preliminary hearing had been set for today as a result of a continuance allowed Nov. 14 when he entered a not guilty plea.

Cook is free on a $1,500 bond. He is represented by Donald E. Smith. Lt. Paul A. Burson Jr. filed the charge.

Collections Aid Fire-Hit Family

The Future Nurses Association of Southern Local High School has collected $51 in cash, two big boxes of groceries, toys and clothing for the Clyde McVay family.

Steam Scalds District Girl

A Glenmoor girl scalded by steam while cooking was treated Friday at City Hospital along with seven other area residents.

Also treated were Andy Kuhas Jr. of Hammondsville RD 1, an elbow injury while playing ball; Linda K. Smith of 615 Lisbon St., a laceration of the forehead in a fall from a chair.

John Wyke of 212 Pennsylvania Ave., an employe at City Hospital, scalds of the right forearm on hot water at work; Levadus Heiney of 106 Mill St., Salineville, a bruised hand while playing volleyball.

'The Christmas Spirit' Sends Zollinger Card

After receiving an anonymous Christmas card for five consecutive years, City Auditor Lawrence J. Zollinger finally got one from the mysterious stranger Friday with a signature on it.

Zollinger receives a card each Christmas time addressed simply: "Jolly Zolly, By Golly, City Holly" — no city, no street name, no state, no zip code. The card yesterday was addressed in the usual fashion.

"I guess somebody over there at the Post Office knows me," Zollinger commented, citing the cryptic address.

Other awards earned by the Wellsville serviceman include the National Defense Service Medal, the Vietnam Service Medal, the Vietnam Campaign Ribbon, the combat infantryman badge, expert badge for rifle and automatic rifle and marksman badge for pistol.

The Bronze Star citation, issued at the direction of President Johnson, points out Sg. David's "outstandingly meritorious service in connection with military operations" in Vietnam from June 5 to Sept. 3.

During that period, it continues, "he consistently manifested exemplary professionalism and initiative in obtaining outstanding results. . . Energetically applying his sound judgment and extensive knowledge, he has contributed materially to the successful accomplishment of the United States mission in the Republic of Vietnam. His loyalty, diligence and devotion to duty were in keeping with the highest tradition of the military service and reflect great credit upon himself and the United States Army."

'The Christmas Spirit' Sends Zollinger Card

After receiving an anonymous Christmas card for five consecutive years, City Auditor Lawrence J. Zollinger finally got one from the mysterious stranger Friday with a signature on it.

Zollinger receives a card each Christmas time addressed simply: "Jolly Zolly, By Golly, City Holly" — no city, no street name, no state, no zip code. The card yesterday was addressed in the usual fashion.

"I guess somebody over there at the Post Office knows me," Zollinger commented, citing the cryptic address.
